Coal costs a dollar a ton extra "at the mouth of the mine" to make up for the strike. They had to pump water out of the mines while the strike lasted.

Workmen had to pump food into their families, and pay rent, while the strike lasted. But they haven't any way of tacking that onto the public by charging them a dollar a day more.

The English King has applauded a poem entitled, "Merchandise," read by a music hall reciter. Julius Rosenwald sent the poem to Lasker of the Shipping Board. Lasker sends it here. It is full of good advice about making business boom, building your ships, and "deep-bosomed mothers with wide-fashioned hips will bear ye good sons for the building of ships," etc.

Commerce is a great thing; producing things at home is also great, for instance:

Germany, before the war, used 200,000 tons of nitrates, importing 120,000 tons from Chile. Today Germany can make 500,000 tons of nitrates a year at home, taking the nitrogen from the air, which carries endless billions of tons of it.

Five hundred thousand tons of nitrogen from the air means a colossal sum in money. It means agricultural independence, also unlimited supplies for making explosives.

In America we are wondering whether Henry Ford should be allowed to use Muscle Shoals water power to produce nitrogen here, or whether Muscle Shoals should go to grafters, as usual. We are slow.

Scientists bound for the Malay Peninsula will look for a race of men "with vestigial tails." Darwin and evolution teach that all men once had tails. They gradually disappeared. Don't say anything about it to William Jennings Bryan, but your own skeleton—you may prove it in the museum—possesses at the end of the spine a small curved bone called the ob coxys. That is what used to be the tail. It's humiliating, but there it is. Bryan himself has it.

A lady in Texas, said to be dying, was fearfully beaten by four other ladies. The four that did the flogging, using straps with metal balls fastened to the ends, stern moralists, describe themselves as a committee from the "Ladies of the Invisible Eye."

That's a name to make the Ku Klux Klan itself sit up and shiver. Every lady has an "invisible eye." Every one can see perfectly out of the corner of her eye without turning her head. Have you noticed that? A few of them can see backward. And some can see what is not.

Bishop Roots, of Hankow, China, tells a missionary mass meeting that Bolshevism is the great force in China. It has "overthrown doctrines that have stood for thousands of years." "Young China" listens eagerly to the Bolsheviki.

That's all very sad. But the good missionaries should remember what Lincoln said when told that General Grant drank too much whiskey. "Get some of that same whiskey for the other generals." There must be a strong kick in Bolshevism, if in a few months, with no money to spend, it can do more to overthrow Chinese traditions than missionary work has been able to do in centuries with many millions to spend—and above all, with all the great authority of all the assorted forms of Christianity back of it.

Chicago, Sept. 14 (By the Associated Press).—Leaders of the Federated railway shopcrafts who today began negotiating separate settlements of the shopmen's srike which began July 1, in accordance with the agreement adopted by the union's general policy committee, announced that several railroads had telegraphed union headquarters indicating willingness to go into the negotiations.

These, the leaders said, where in addition to about fifty roads which previously had agreed to separate settlements.

TRUCK HIT TROLLEY, 2 HURT

Score of Men and Women Are Shaken in Head-on Collision at Newton Highlands

Two men were injured, one probably fatally, and a score of men and women shaken, when a Boston and Worcester trolley car and a heavy truck crashed head-on at Walnut and Boylston streets, Newton Highlands today.

Carl Dodson, fifty-one years old of No. 19 Thompson street, Winchester, who was driving the truck, was so seriously injured that his name was placed on the danger list.

The man riding with him, Michael O'Brien, No. 153 Meridian street, East Boston, was not so seriously injured. None of the fifteen passengers on the car was hurt.

Motorman William Donnelly, No. 434 Hollis street, Framingham, said he didn't see the truck until it was on top of him. The conductor was W. B. Merson, No. 1 Upland street, Worcester.

SAILOR DRIVEN TO SUICIDE BY SLANDER

Portland, Me., Sept. 14.—Edwin Salbu of New York, first mate on the steamer Natira, now here, cut his throat in his cabin. O. A. Nariahl, ship's boatswain, discovered the body. Pressed for the reason for Salbu's deed, he said: "Slander. Something going on behind his back."

According to the boatswain, Salbu was well off financially. Last June he married Miss Agnes Brynn of New York. Mrs. Salbu is now in Bergen, Norway, visiting her parents.

BRIDE IS FREED IN SHOOTING

Court Refuses Warrant for Alleged Hotel Attack on Husband

Slumped against the door in the lobby of the Fenmore, No. 64 Charlesgate East, while he calmly smoked a cigarette, Michael D'Amato was found early today with a bullet in his abdomen.

Mrs. Gladys Lorraine D'Amato, the wounded man's bride of three weeks, who was rushing about the neighborhood trying to find a doctor, was questioned in connection with the case.

Judge Ahearn of the Roxbury Court later refused to grant a warrant for the arrest of Mrs. D'Amato on the charge of assault and battery with a dangerous weapon with intent to kill. She was then released.

D'Amato, who the police say, has no occupation, but who, with his wife, occupies an apartment on the fifth floor of the Fenmore, was taken to the City Hospital.

The police were notified and a detail from the Back Bay station arrived about the same time as a physician who administered first aid.

In the meantime, according to the police, Mrs. D'Amato had called a taxi and hurried to the Frits-Carlton Hotel where she asked for a physician. She was told to go to the Fenmore as several were in residence there and there was all-night telephone service.

A few minutes later Mrs. D'Amato returned to the Frits-Carlton and again was sent to the Fenmore. This time she went to the Fenmore to find the police in charge.

EXONERATES HIS WIFE.

At the hospital D'Amato exonerated his wife.

"The kid is innocent," he declared. "I was shot outside and was trying to get home."

Mrs. D'Amato in the police station protested her innocence to Captain

Bestows Husband Upon Her Rival

Mrs. Gleason Willing to Yield Him, but Brings Suit for Non-Support

MRS. GLEASON AND HER SON

GIVES UP HUBBY TO RIVAL, BUT ASKS SUPPORT

A strange marital tangle was heard in Dedham Court today when Herbert E. Gleason, father of five illegitimate children, appeared to answer the charge of non-support of his wife and one legitimate child.

For seven years Mrs. Gleason had sought the husband who had deserted her and her baby. Two weeks ago she found him at No. 84 Bowdoin street, Worcester. He was living with a woman named Victoria Boucher and the couple had five children.

When the couple were arraigned in Worcester Mrs. Gleason made a dramatic scene in the court room. When she saw the five children calling her husband "daddy" and Miss Boucher "mother," Mrs. Gleason burst into tears and said: "I cannot allow these children to bear the stigma of being born out of wedlock I give up my husband to the Boucher woman."

Judge Bancroft continued the case against Gleason to next Monday, ordering him to pay Mrs. Gleason $5 weekly until the case is settled.

CHARGE 4 PER CENT. BEER IS BREWED

Want Injunction to Close the Plant; Plan Drive Throughout New England

What is considered the first move by the Federal government to close the breweries in New England was taken today, when suit was filed in the Federal Court here against the Worcester Products Company of Worcester.

The suit seeks an injunction to prevent the brewery, of which Michael J. Finnigan is president, from manufacturing liquor further, and asks that manufactured products now on the premises be ordered destroyed.

It is understood that this is a test case, the first gun in the combined attack on the brewers to be made by the Department of Justice and the prohibition unit, and that other actions in court may follow.

The Worcester brewery has been manufacturing beer constantly since prohibition and it was charged that much of the product found its way to Rhode Island and other States.

SAY BEER HAS "KICK."

Finnigan, the president; H. A. Henry, vice-president, and Herbert A. Maynard, treasurer of the company, were named in the bill, which was filed by Assistant United States Attorney Elihu D. Stone.

The action, the first of its kind against any brewery in this Federal jurisdiction since the advent of the National Prohibition Act, was brought under section 22, title 2, of the act.

It was alleged in the bill that the brewery constitutes a place where intoxicating liquors are "manufactured, sold, kept and bartered," and is a common nuisance.

It was charged that beer of more than one-half of one per cent. alcoholic content is being manufactured at the present time, the content, according to investigators for the government, running to four per cent.

EYE ON RHODE ISLAND.

If the bill in equity, seeking temporary and permanent injunctions, is successful, U. S. Marshal William J. Keville will take possession of the brewery and the manufactured beer. He will destroy the beer and hold the property pending a hearing and decision in the case.

According to prohibition headquarters at Washington, the next attack will be directed at Providence and other Rhode Island cities, where beer has long been flowing like the biblical milk and honey.

For some time conditions in and around Providence have been holding the attention of officials, and investigations having been made, action is expected shortly.

Rhode Island beer, at times the product of one well known brewery and again manufactured by another equally well known firm, has been constantly on sale since prohibition. At times, due to internal discord, there has been a temporary shortage, which was offset by a flood of Worcester beer.

After the squabbles were settled, however, one or the other of the two breweries has always resumed business and beer has been on tap not only in near-beer saloons but also in drug stores.

BROUGHT 15 CENTS GLASS.

The last agreement reached by the Rhode Island higher-ups permitted the sale of a certain brand of beer, and any saloon keeper who violated this rule was summarily dealt with. He was closed up immediately without calling on the prohibition authorities and it cost him plenty to obtain permission to reopen.

Rhode Island beer sold for fifteen cents a glass, and both Rhode Island and Worcester beer were obtainable at retail for fifty cents a bottle. In barrels it could be purchased for $25 or $30.

BRING SUITS AGAINST MORRISSEY'S ESTATE

Suits were filed in the United States District Court today as a result of the misappropriation of $9,000 and other assets in a bankruptcy case by Richard J. Mohlissey of Westfield, who was then trustee for the bankrupt estate of John E. Boyle and who has since died.

The suits, brought for the United States by Henry W. Hallbourg, who succeeded Morrissey as master, are against Charles W. Hassler of Westfield, executor of Morrissey's will, and against Morrissey's bondsmen, the Title Guaranty and Security Company of Pennsylvania.

Terms of Peace in Rail Strike Settlement

The terms of the agreement to end the railroad shopmen's strike by separate peace negotiations are:

All men to return to work in position of the class they originally held on June 30, 1922, and at the same point. As many of such men as possible are to be immediately put to work, at present rates of pay, and all such employes who have been on strike be put to work or under pay not later than thirty days after the signing of this agreement, except such men as have been proven guilty of acts of violence, which, in the opinion of the commission, hereinafter provided for, shall be sufficient cause for dismissal from service.

The relative standing as between themselves, of men returning to work and men laid off, furloughed or on leave of absence, including general chairmen and others who were as of June 30, 1922, properly on leave of absence, will be restored as of June 30, 1922, and they will be called back to work in that order.

If a dispute arises as to the relative standing of an employe or if any other controversy arises growing out of the strike that cannot be otherwise adjusted, the matter shall be referred to a commission to be established and constituted as hereinafter provided, for final decision.

DUBLIN PHONE EXCHANGE IS BOMBARDED

Belfast, Sept. 14 (By the Associated Press).—The Ulster government, it was announced today, has discovered a plot to blow up or scuttle the steamer Argenta, on which 300 Sinn Feiners are interned at Larne Lough, County Antrim.

Belfast, Sept. 14.—Reports from Dublin today tell of heavy firing heard over a wide area in that city shortly after midnight.

The telephone exchange in Crown privy was under attack for about twenty minutes, machine guns being used by the assailants, while another attack was made on the Four Courts Hotel, where National army troops are stationed.

Loud reverberations were heard along the quays and in Sackville street and armored cars were hurried to the scene of the firing. By 2 o'clock, however, quietness again prevailed.

SEIZE ARMY UNIFORMS.

Last evening armed men raided the premises of the Dublin Clothing Co. on Wellington quay, taking a number of National army uniforms.

Advices from Cork state that Timothy Kennefick, a prominent Republican of that city, was dragged from a lorry by an armed band while he was returning from Macroom and that later he was found shot dead.

Prior to the landing of National army men at Courtmacsherry, County Cork, there was a deadly engagement with a large Republican force. The Republicans used machine guns with which they poured a heavy fire into the Nationals' boat. Three Republicans were killed and ten wounded. The Nationals say only one of their men was wounded.

SHOT AS A SPY.

Tipperary advices state that Thomas Brennan, a gardener, of Sherlow, County Tipperary, was taken from his home and shot dead, a label attached to the body being inscribed, "Convicted Spy."

It is estimated that sixteen persons have been killed in South and West Ireland in the past few days.

Ballina, in the northern section of County Mayo, has been recaptured by the Republicans, who swooped down upon the town several hundred strong and captured the garrison of government troops. The Nationals fought stubbornly and suffered casualties before they were disarmed. Several buildings, including the bank, are reported to have been burned.

Large forces of troops from all parts of the county are concentrating upon the town.

Another account from Ballina says the majority of the national garrison were in the Cathedral at the time of the attack, attending a requiem mass for a comrade recently killed, while most of the others were in bed, having spent the greater part of the preceding night on guard in anticipation of the assault.

THREE REPORTED SLAIN.

The soldiers who were actually armed and in a position to fight were hopelessly outnumbered. Two civilians, a girl and a man, are said to have been shot dead, and a number of soldiers and civilians wounded.

When the Republican left they took with them two civilians, prominent treaty supporters.

Eamon De Valera Will Spurn Amnesty

By International News Service.

London, Sept. 14.—Eamon De Valera will refuse amnesty from the Free State government and will continue the battle against the Anglo-Irish treaty and the Irish Constitution, it was indicated by an interview given by the irregular chieftain in reply to General Richard Mulcahy's speech in the Dail Eireann and telegraphed here today.

"The pro-treaty party wants to play with the new army and win cheap military glory," declared De Valera. "I stand by every ford that I spoke and every charge I made during the political campaign and the election."

De Valera charged that the pro-treaty party "broke their pact with the Irish Republicans at the instance of Premier Lloyd George and Colonial Secretary Winston Churchill, with the result that the Republicans are unable to avert a terrible state of affairs.

"The Republicans chose to stand by those who were true to their pledges of national faith."

"When Knighthood Was in Flower, Wonderful," Says Prince of Wales

Heir to British Throne Predicts a Huge Success for the Picture After a Command Performance at York House

By FORBES W. FAIRBAIRN.
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

Special Cable to Universal Service.

London, Sept. 14.—" 'When Knighthood Was in Flower,' is a wonderful picture. It is well acted. I am greatly interested in it and predict a huge success for it in England."

This was the Prince of Wales' enthusiastic comment on the great historical film when it was shown by command at York House, his London residence, last Monday.

On two hours' notice representatives of Cosmopolitan Productions set up the entire projector apparatus in the beautiful Japanese salon filled with treasures collected by the prince on his recent trip to Japan.

GREATLY INTERESTED.

The prince was greatly interested in the technical points of the production, incessantly asking questions as to how the wonderful effects were obtained. He praised the excellent photography and the clearness and accuracy of the historical pageantry.

The film, in which Miss Marion Davies and Lyn Harding are starring, delighted the prince, who, of course, is familiar with the famous story. He followed each scene with the closest attention.

The extraordinary importance of the cast of "When Knighthood Was in Flower" has made this picture the most discussed of any feature ever promised for London production even before the film arrived in England.

Miss Marion Davies is a great favorite in England. She is of the blond English type and resembles in appearance and manner such notable London favorites at Gladys Cooper and Phyllis Dare. Lyn Harding, who plays King Henry VIII., is the most popular actor in England at this time. Most of the other actors in the picture are as well known in England as they are in America, and so many notable actors in one photoplay is something entirely unprecedented. Therefore, the arrival of the film in England was awaited with much interest.

AT RESIDENCE OF PRINCE.

Mr. Jack Potter, who has become the representative of the Hearst publications abroad, brought the film to England and almost immediately upon his arrival he was commanded by the Prince of Wales to exhibit the film at York House. The full twelve reels of "When Knighthood Was in Flower" was therefore shown before the prince at his London residence. The prince was highly delighted with the picture and expressed himself enthusiastically in the terms quoted verbatim at the beginning of this cablegram.

The artistic beauty of the sets and the historical accuracy of the production in general have made impressions in London as favorable as the importance of the cast, and the picture is expected to make an enormous success in England, as the Prince of Wales predicts.

The Scala Theatre has been leased for an indefinite period and the first public performance of "When Knighthood Was in Flower" will take place in London shortly after the first performance in New York.

New York, Sept. 14.—"When Knighthood Was in Flower" will be shown for the first time publicly beginning tonight at the Criterion Theatre, Broadway and Forty-fourth street, where it will remain indefinitely.

CONSERVATIVES RULE TYPO CONVENTION

By Universal Service.

Atlantic City, Sept. 14.—The proposal made by the radicals in the Typographical Union convention limiting the working week in daily newspaper offices to forty-four hours was beaten decisively. The conservatives appear to have established control.

Another contest won by the conservatives carried control of the Typographical Journal, official organ of the union. Matthew Woll, president of the Photo Engravers' Union, told the convention his union would have nothing to do with the proposal of the radicals to amalgamate the printing trades into one big union.

RAILWAY LINES SIGNING STRIKE PEACE PACT

Chicago switching district and feeds the steel plants of the Calumet and adjacent industrial districts.

Only B. & A. Affected in New England

Shopmen of the Boston & Albany road, the only New England system included in the settlement of the railway strike, were preparing to return to work in anticipation of the formal signing of the peace agreement in Chicago today.

Strikers returning to work have apparently won the disputed seniority rights, although "seniority" is not mentioned in the agreement as such.

The New Haven and the Boston & Maine, together with their subsidiary, smaller roads, steadfastly refused to enter the agreement of the sixty systems, mostly Western and Southern.

E. G. Buckland, vice-president of the New Haven, indicated the attitude of the New England roads in a statement that strikers' places had been filled and that no more help was needed.

"The New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company," he said, "has had no part in the negotiations with Mr. Jewell in Chicago. It entered into an agreement with the employes who took the places of the strikers. There is no occasion for the company to make any other agreement, and it has not done so."

Withhold List of "Peace" Roads

Chicago, Sept. 14 (By the Associated Press).—Although the shopcrafts' executive council remained here with Mr. Jewell to direct the affairs of the railway shop unions in settling the strike, policy committee members scattered to their respective districts.

Railway systems counted among those expected to sign the agreement immediately or soon were said to number about fifty of the 262 class one roads of the country. Some of the larger systems were counted among those willing to sign for immediate peace.

The mileage affected today was estimated at about 55,000 of the 250,000 miles in the United States.

The text of instructions to officials of system federations would remain confidential, Mr. Jewell said. He said also that union leaders would not make public at this time a list of the roads which were parties to the agreement, because the list will probably be augmented by new signers as the result of further conferences with roads not already in the agreement.

Any list made public, Mr. Jewell said, would have to come from the railroads themselves.

Efforts to verify published lists of roads accepting the settlement drew denials from the Erie, Burlington, Chicago & Great Western, Southern Pacific, Illinois Central and a large number of other roads.

The New York Central group was one of the largest generally credited with planning to sign the agreement.

Under the terms of the peace plan shopmen are to return to work under wage scales prescribed by the United States Railroad Labor Board effective July 1, the date the strike began.

The question of seniority which developed after the strike began and proved to be the chief barrier to an earlier settlement was not specifically mentioned in the agreement, which provides that the shopmen shall return to work in "positions of the class" they occupied before the strike.

JOBS FOR ALL IN 30 DAYS.

Disputes over the "relative standing" of employes and new disputes which might arise as outgrowths of the strike, shall, under the peace terms, be referred to adjustment boards composed of six representatives of the carriers and an equal number of employes, if the disputes cannot be settled as an individual matter.

The agreement requires the signatory roads to find places for all returned strikers within thirty days after it becomes effective. Roads are not required to take back strikers who have committed acts of violence.

Roads for Pact, Say Reports to Capital

Washington, Sept. 15.—Advices to the Labor Department today from its representatives in Chicago said that railroads representing approximately 35 per cent. of the country's mileage had signified their intention of ending the shopmen's strike on the basis of the agreement accepted yesterday by the shop crafts' general committee and that the roads representing an additional 20 per cent. were ready to end the strike.

TODAY

Alps in France has had no crime, no work for judges, no juries called, in eighteen months. That is a new thing in history, and the world wonders.

Some day civilization will look back on our criminal courts, prisons, electric chairs, gallows, guillotine, garrotte, as we now look upon cannibalism, the "auto-da-fe," and torture of witnesses. Crime is born of ignorance and poverty. Both will end.

INJUNCTION FIGHT PRESSED BY THE U. S.

Chicago, Sept. 14.—Despite the partial settlement of the railway shopmen's strike, the injunction fight on Attorney-General Daugherty's application for a preliminary restraining order against rail strikers was continued today.

Peace settlements would not alter the government's determination to finish its case, spokesmen for the Attorney-General said.

The government attorneys continued presentation of evidence in support of their charges that a widespread conspiracy of violence and intimidation existed in connection with the shopmen's strike.

Local Leader Declares for a "Finish Fight"

Local leaders of the striking New Havan and Boston & Maine shopmen declared today they were confident their representatives had not compromised their right to "fight to a finish."

Settlement conditions as reported are not satisfactory to the men of the New Haven and Boston & Maine federations.

"We have stated again and again that we would not be a party to anything but a national agreement. We know that the New Haven is bluffing with its talk of ignoring us," said Robert Henderson, one of the two strike leaders in Massachusetts summoned by the Federal government in connection with injunction proceedings in Chicago.

Asked if this meant that the federation would ignore the settlement even if the New Haven road accepted it, Henderson answered that "they would probably keep on fighting." However, sentiment among the shopmen was that their organization would stand back of any agreement their delegates made, otherwise there was danger of being declared an outlaw organization by the National Brotherhood of Railway Workers.

End of Strike Should Start Business Boom

Washington, Sept. 14.—Coal production is now on again in full swing with the country's bins nearly empty and cold weather only a matter of weeks away. Millions of tons of coal will have to be moved in the next few months if industry is to be fed this Winter and houses heated.

In addition to the tremendous coal carrying business ahead of the railroads, there also is the great national movement, of this season's bumper crops to the railroad and to the mills. The crop movement is just now getting under way.

Commodities of all kinds are stacked up all along the railroads of the country in terminals and warehouses awaiting shipment that has been delayed for the last eight weeks on account of the priorities established by the emergency order of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

It is this unprecedented volume of business ahead of the railroads that inspired Cabinet officers to predict today a welcome era of prosperity ahead for the country.

Independent Union for Lehigh Shopmen

New York, Sept. 14.—President E. E. Loomis of the Lehigh Valley Railroad today announced that "it is out of the question for us to accept" the plan proposed to end the rail strike. He said his employes are now forming an association of their own.

New Jersey Central Will Ignore Plan

New York, Sept. 14.—C. H. Stein, general manager of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, announced his road "would not even consider the proposal."

MRS. HARDING SHOWS BIG IMPROVEMENT

Washington, Sept. 14.—It will be weeks, if not months, before Mrs. Warren G. Harding completely recovers from the disease that carried her nearly to death's door, her physicians said today in reporting a continuation of steady improvement in her condition.

So marked is the improvement in her condition that the physicians today discontinued the issuance of the regular twice-a-day bulletins.

Out of a maze of legal actions, it begins to look as if the Crawford-Paul tangle may work out to the satisfaction of all concerned.

At a hearing before Judge Joseph Walsh, in the uncontested divorce division at East Cambridge, attorneys for Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Crawford were ordered to draw up a decree to submit to the court.

It is understood that the decree will grant a divorce to Mrs. Crawford, with alimony of $10,000.

This is the latest development in the matrimonial tangle which set social and fraternal circles of Newton and Watertown buzzing a year ago. The first of the series of suits was filed by Mrs. Grace H. Paul against her husband, Edward Paul, park commissioner of Watertown.

FLOCK OF DIVORCE SUITS.

In her suit Mrs. Paul mentioned Mrs. Crawford.

There was great surprise, for Mrs. Paul is a past worthy matron of the Eastern Star chapter at Watertown, and Mrs. Crawford is a member of the Palestine chapter at Newton.

Shortly after Mrs. Paul filed her suit, Frederick Crawford filed suit for divorce against his wife, Estelle, mentioning Edward Paul.

Mrs. Crawford promptly filed suit against her husband, mentioning Mrs. Paul.

Today, in a sick-bed, Mrs. Crawford said:

"Since May 12 I have been seriously ill as a result of an encounter in the home of Mrs. Paul. On that day I went to Mrs. Paul's home, having received information that my husband was there. Mr. Paul was nowhere to be seen on the premises. I stole up to the place and heard voices. They were the voices of my husband and Mrs. Paul.

HUSBAND ASSAULTED HER.

"I heard Mrs. Paul say, 'How about my bills? They've been piling up. Hadn't you better pay them?' 'Yes, darling,' I heard my husband reply. 'You get all the bills together, and I'll pay them.' A moment later they came out with their arms affectionately entwined about each other. When my husband saw me he flew into a terrible rage. He ran toward me, grabbed me by the hair and practically dragged me to the door, where he kicked me out.

"I have been ill ever since then, suffering from the shock. Yesterday I dragged myself out of a sick bed and was carried to court to testify. I believe I will be granted my divorce.

"My husband will then have a chance to get what he seems to want awfully bad—Mrs. Paul. I hope he gets her, for if he does he'll get just what he deserves. She has made life hell for me with her carryings on with my husband. Now she has a chance to get him, and that means she'll get what's coming to her, too.

ADVICE TO RIVAL.

"However, for the sake of our once friendly relations, I wish to give her a little advice. Now that she has a clear field to my husband, I warn her to keep her eyes on a certain rich little widow and a trained nurse."

Mrs. Crawford's reference to "our once friendly relations" referred to the days before the mixup, when the Crawfords and Pauls were quite inseparable, and both families spent their Summers at South Yarmouth on Cape Cod.

Mrs. Paul has been one of the most popular matrons of Watertown and Brighton, prominent in pageants and spectacles put on there for various charitable purposes. She was married to Edward J. Paul in Watertown in 1910, it being her second marriage. Her first ended in divorce.

HUSBANDS IN FIGHT.

Following the first of the Crawford divorce actions, they became involved in a peculiar situation, inasmuch as they were business partners in a garage and undertaking establishment. Mrs. Crawford herself, it is understood, was twice married and divorced before marrying Crawford. Prior to her marriage she was a trained nurse.

HUSBAND SHOT, BRIDE FREED

Kneeland, but offered no explanation of the shooting.

The couple have had dealings several times with the police in the past. Mrs. D'Amato is said to be of a jealous disposition and her husband's alleged attentions to other woman have been the cause of many quarrels.

A few weeks ago while engaged in a quarrel, the couple were ordered to move on by Patrolman Flaherty of the Back Bay station. D'Amato swung at the officer's jaw and connected. Both were arrested and charged with assault and battery.

WELL KNOWN TO POLICE.

The woman, better known in the Back Bay cafes as Gladys Lorraine, has been taken into custody several times, the police say. She has been arrested for assault, drunkenness and disturbing the peace.

When taken to the police station today Mrs. D'Amato presented an attractive picture. A blue turban set snugly on her titian-haired head, there was a fur peekpiece dropping from one shoulder, and she wore a stylish new Fall gown of blue serge trimmed with pale blue silk. The woman had an expensive looking string of pearl beads, and wore several rings, including two diamonds.

Before prohibition she was known as a clever dancer with some pretensions to being a singer.

NEW ELECTION MUST REST ON LEGISLATURE

The ballot-shortage muddle, which deprived nearly 6,000 Boston citizens of their right to vote in the primaries, took a new twist today when State officers declared public officials are without authority to right the wrong.

A special session of the Legislature may be necessary to call special elections in all the ballot shortage-districts, including the entire city of Boston, Winthrop, Revere and Chelsea, if the defeated candidates persist in their demands for a square deal.

Four protests had been filed with the Secretary of State today and the telephone lines were kept busy by other candidates who said they would be in with their formal applications for a new election before the time expired at 5 o'clock this afternoon.

BRENNAN LEADS PROTESTS.

Former Senator James H. Brennan, defeated in a close race for clerk of the Supreme Court, has filed a protest that will cause State authorities to determine whether a new primary election shall be held "in order to secure a fair canvass of the voters of Suffolk county."

Senator Thomas H. Green, contesting Congressman Tague's nomination, has asserted his right to a new ballot.

The granting of Green's application would cause a new election in the fighting Tenth District, while Brennan's appeal, if granted, would require a new election over the entire county.

Brennan declared the most serious shortage was in his home district, Charlestown, where he ran ahead of John F. Cronin. It is reasonal to assume, he said, that the great bulk of disfranchised Charlestown citizens would have voted for him.

FAVORS SPECIAL ELECTION.

John J. Gillis, aspirant for the House in Ward 4, Charlestown, has protested the nomination of Representative James J. Mellen and John J. McCarthy in the two-man district. The fourth protest was from Martin S. Kilgallon, House candidate in Ward 15.

It is said at the secretary's office today that the protests are without precedent.

"The Ballot Law Commission has authority over nominations, and over nominations alone," said one official. "It is powerless to call a special election to right any wrong. I feel that only the Legislature can call a special election. If this situation appears to be as grave as the reports indicate, it certainly would be worth while to call a special session of the Legislature."

Petitions in for New Election in 18th District

Petitions swamped the Election Commissioners today. Many defeated candidates demanded recounts. Others asked the election be set aside and another held, and others that candidates be refused certification of nomination, as a result of the ballot shortage.

Joseph M. Ward, defeated for the Democratic nomination for the House, was among those asking recounts.

James J. Twohig, defeated candidate for Democratic nomination to the House, asked that a new election be called, on the ground that the election was illegal because at least twenty-one of those who voted between 10:30 and 10:45 p. m. had not been at the polls at 4 o'clock.

Richard Garvey, defeated for the third time for Democratic nomination to the House, on similar grounds asked that certificates of nomination be refused to any candidate in his district, the 18th, in Dorchester.

POLICE CALL BOOTLEGGER'S BLUFF

Inspector Tracey of the Waltham police department believes in being at home when opportunity knocks.

Today while standing in Central square he was approached by Traffic Officer Fred Whalen, who said a man he believed to be a badly-wanted bootlegger had entered a waiting room.

The two policemen asked the man to open a heavy suitcase. He defied the officers to open it without a warrant.

Tracey drew a John Doe warrant from his pocket, opened the suitcase and discovered twelve bottles of French brandy. He thereupon arrested the suitcase owner, who was booked as Stephen Bongenio, alias Brigandi, alias Brindi, twenty-two years old, of No. 89 North Beacon street, Watertown.

In the Waltham Court, Captain Currin said Bongenio had been a bootlegger since prohibition went into effect, but had never been caught. The defendant pleaded not guilty, and claimed he had purchased the cognac in Boston for only $40. Judge Abbott fined him $200 and sentenced him to four months in the House of Correction.

Bongenio appealed and then turned to his mother, who sat in the courtroom. Mrs. Bongenio shrugged her shoulders, threw out her hands and with a negative shake of the head, walked out. Bongenio will serve his time.

HUSBAND SHOT, COUNTESS FLED

New York, Sept. 14.—Declaring she escaped from Russia after her husband had been shot down before her eyes by the Bolshevists, Countess Anna Zarnekau is here to find her cousin, Count Ilya Tolstoy, son of the Russian writer, believed to be living in seclusion near Stamford, Ct. The countess escaped from Russia by sleigh across the White Sea to Finland and then came to America, she stated. Her stay in America has been financed by the sale of her jewels and when that money is gone she said she would have to find work.

TAGUE OFF TO VOTE ON BONUS BILL

Congressman Peter F. Tague, renominated by the Democratic party in Tuesday's primaries, has left for Washington in order to be present today, when it is expected that the soldier bonus bill will be acted on. The congressman was to have addressed meetings of the tenth district voters to thank them for their support in the primaries, but postponed the meetings when he received word that action was due on the bonus bill.

As a Chocolate Dipper the Flap Proves to Be Fine Hod Carrier

She Works the Splash System Till the Boss Says "Outside—Outside"

By THE FLAPPER.
Caryl Frink.

S'Funny. Nothing ever turns out the way you've got it planned in the old bean. Even the childhood dream of diving head-first into a vat of sweet chocolate, and wallowing there indefinitely, turns out to be the bally bunk.

Mr. Arthur Canning, of the wafers, gave me a job at the Loose-Wiles Biscuit Company in the dipping department. All I hadda do was bathe a collection of marshmallowed cookies in choc'late, but, oh, whatta mess I made of it.

The point of the game seemed to be to splash the chocolate vigorously enough to land it in your face. It made the work easier. Choc'late is so sustaining.

IN TO THE ELBOWS.

Mayme, who worked at the vat next to mine, was an old timer. She dipped without dribbling. And she only got the choc'late up to her wrists. I had my elbows in.

"Why don'cha eat any of 'em? I asked her. "Nobody's lookin'."

"Huh," said Mayme. "Anybody c'd tell you're a greenie with one eye shut. Try eatin' 'em. That's what they have the first aid room for. Just for beginners that over-eat at their work."

"Maybe you're right," I said. I did begin to feel a little choc-larish.

"Before I worked here I usta like cookies better'n anything else," said Mayme. "That's why I got a job here. I usta work in a pressed brick fac'try. Then I got to thinkin' that makin' something to eat would be more fun. So I quit my job there and came here."

NOW LIKES PICKLES.

"What's your fav'rite thing to eat now?" I asked her.

"Sour pickles," snapped Mayme. "The sourer the better."

"Here, here," spoke up the foreman, who had slid up our way on some of the choclate I'd spilled. "You'll never get advanced to the packing department if you go on this way."

"I don't wanna get advanced," I told him. "I wanna get demoted."

"Why?" he said. "Don't you like the choc'late?"

"Not any more," I said, weakly. "An' if it's all the same to you I'd like to be in the salted crackers for awhile. The saltier the better."

SWEET COOKIE!

When I got through playin' around with the cake-eaters at Loose-Wiles I looked like a chocolate Santy Claus.

137,000 PUPILS BACK IN SCHOOL

It's all wrong, Napoleon, it's all wrong.

At least that is the opinion of 137,000 children, more or less, who resumed their labors at the reopening of the Boston public schools.

This was an increase of 6,000 over the attendance of last year, and five new buildings were used for the first time, taking care of 3,500 of the added children. The remainder were cared for in portable structures.

Nearly 10,000 entered school for the first time, as compared with last year's enrollment of 9,642. In the grades about 102,000 enrolled as compared with 99,867 last year. The high school total was approximately 23,000 as against 20,908 last year.

New York, Sept. 14—The last time Frank A. Vanderlip returned from his studies abroad, he wrote a book.

This time, however, the distinguished financier is content to belabor himself with nothing more than a dawning smile and a windward tan.

DR. BRIDES STAYS IN HUB, SAYS FORBES

It was definitely stated today that Dr. Arthur E. Brides, Boston director of the United States Veterans' Bureau, would continue in his post.

A month ago Colonel Charles R. Forbes, director-general of the bureau, after a tour of inspection of all the districts, reported the Boston office the best in the country. Shortly afterward, however, charges were brought against Dr. Brides and anonymous telegraphs flooded the office of Colonel Forbes at Washington.

After listening to those who made charges against Dr. Brides, and then giving Brides a hearing, Colonel Forbes announced that Dr. Brides would continue indefinitely at his post.

CHILD-MOTHER NAMES PASTOR, STEPFATHER

Sidney, O., Sept. 14.—Charged with being the father of a child born six weeks ago to his eleven-year-old stepdaughter, Elizabeth Ladd, Rev. L. W. Irwin, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Amelia, Ohio, was to be arraigned in Mayor's Court here today.

Irwin strongly protested his innocence. He was brought here and placed in jail.

The girl, who until yesterday had declared she did not know who could have been the father of the baby, broke down under repeated grilling, said she had been intimate with her step-father for more than a year.

"I didn't know it was wrong," she sobbed. "I didn't tell mother, because I thought my stepfather was too good to do anything that wasn't right."

Irwin had been married to Mrs. Ladd for about five years.

GIRL GIVES LIFE TO SAVE THREE

Beirut, Syria, Sept. 14.—A remarkable story of sacrifice, in which a fourteen-year-old girl gave her life to save three companions, has been received here by the American committee on relief in the Near East.

While 100 children were bathing in the Mediterranean near an orphanage maintained by the committee in the vicinity of Aintylea, three small boys were carried beyond the safety ropes into a dangerous whirlpool.

Ruth Manoukian, the only other person within helping distance, swam to the edge of the maelstrom and succeeded by almost superhuman effort in rescuing all the lads and carrying them to a rock. Then she collapsed from over-exertion and died before a lifeboat could reach the rock.

Ruth arrived at the orphanage from Kharput last week after two years of attempts to escape from the interior, dominated by the Turks, and was expecting to sail for America next month to join relatives.

JUDGE L. ROGER WENTWORTH IS DEAD

Judge L. Roger Wentworth, for twenty years presiding justice of the Somerville District Court, died at noon today at his home, No. 81 Monroe street, Somerville. He had been ill for about a year. During that time he had conducted the affairs of the court from his sick bed.

Judge Wentworth was born in Bridgewater on April 26, 1865. He was educated in the public schools of Bridgewater. In 1881 he graduated from Dartmouth, following which he taught school. He was for a short time principal of the public school at Mansfield and for three years principal of the high school at Fairhaven. Following this he taught school for a while in Boston.

He moved to Somerville in 1884 and promptly became identified with the business and legal activities of the city. He studied law in the office of Albert D. Collins of New Bedford and was admitted to the bar in 1884. In 1888-90 he served in the Common Council of Somerville.

Upon the death of Judge Isaac Story in 1901 he was appointed to succeed him by Governor Crane, and had since then served continuously as a judge. His wife died in 1917 and he is survived by a brother, Dr. Lowell Wentworth, and three sisters. He was prominent in Masonic activities and was a director of the Somerville National Bank ever since it was organized.

No funeral arrangements have been made.

MOVIE MAN IS KILLED BY POISON

Isaac Wolper, organizer of the Mayflower Photoplay Company, and closely connected with the affairs of the closed Cosmopolitan Trust Company, who died suddenly in his room at the American House Tuesday evening, came to his death as a result of poison, according to a report filed by Medical Examiner Magrath.

"There is no evidence at present to indicate that any hand but his own was instrumental in his death," said the medical examiner.

POLICE START INQUIRY.

Police officials, immediately on receiving the medical examiner's report, began an investigation of their own. His report came after an autopsy, and he indicated that he has not yet completed his probe. The vital organs of the dead man were sent to the Harvard Medical School today, in order that an analysis of their contents might reveal the exact nature of the poison that caused death.

Mr. Wolper's home was at No. 18 Crowinshield road, Brookline. He became interested in the Mayflower Corporation several months ago and secured the necessary financial backing from Max Mitchell, president of the Cosmopolitan Trust, which was at that time a going concern. When the bank crashed, however, Wolper found himself in difficulties, and the picture concern went into the hands of Mitchell.

Mr. Wolper is said to have been in the possession of information highly important to the officials who are settling the tangled affairs of the Cosmopolitan.

REGISTERED MONDAY

He registered at the American House Monday evening, and is said to have been seen about the lobby on the afternoon of election day. In the evening, however, when Annie Whelton, a housekeeper, entered the room, she found him stretched out across the bed, dead.

Mr. Wolper's family, in Brookline, scouted the theory of foul play, and said they believed he died a natural death. This was before the medical examiner had announced his discovery of poison. Efforts to get in touch with them after this news came were futile.

ASKS CLEMENCEAU TO VISIT BOSTON

Mayor Curley today sent a cordial invitation to Georges Clemenceau, "Tiger of France," to have M. Clemenceau include Boston in his itinerary when he begins his tour of America.

After stating that he had received unofficial advice that M. Clemenceau would begin his tour about Nov. 1, the Mayor wrote:

"Will you not, as the great leader on behalf of liberal government, accept an invitation to visit the city of Boston, to be our guest and assure our citizens that the ties between France and the United States are indissoluble, and leave with us a message which will appeal to every patriotic citizen? I sincerely trust I may have the opportunity of greeting you in Boston during November."

$56,000 SEIZED ON "RUM" SCHOONER

New York, Sept. 14.—The two-masted schooner H. M Gardner was brought into port today by the dry navy boat Taylor and 100 cases of liquor with $56,000 in gold was taken to the Customs House. The Gardner was seized off Scotland Light.

Captain M. C. Betts, the Gardner's skipper, said he was going from Nova Scotia to Nassau when the Taylor's crew boarded him. He said he had just delivered 4,000 cases of liquor and was taking the 100 seized cases back to Nassau because it had not been accepted by his purchasers.

Books containing names and addresses of hotel keepers at Asbury Park, Atlantic City and Long Beach were found aboard.

Alkali in Soap Bad for the Hair "Use Mulsified"

Soap should be used very carefully if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup or glass with a little warm water is sufficient to cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any pharmacy. It's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.

NEGROES FIGHT FINGERPRINT BAN HERE

Boston negroes today prepared for a bitter protest of what they term evidence of Ku Kluxism in action taken by more than 100 finger-print experts in convention here.

The association, known as the International Association for Identification, today barred all negroes from its membership.

The protesting negroes point to the significant fact that the chairman of the committee that drew up the constitution, including the jibe at the negroes, is Paul N. Waggoner of Memphis, Tenn.

The article of the constitution which has stirred local negroes, reads: "The active membership of the association shall consist of the chiefs of police, superintendents of bureaus of identification and investigation, sheriffs and all other persons actually engaged in the business of identification and investigation, except that no person of negro blood shall be eligible to membership in the association."

The offending article was voted into the constitution by a vote of 27 to 17. On the committee that drew up the constitution and by laws are: Chairman, Paul N. Waggoner, Memphis; G. A. Benson, Waupun, Wis.; Leroy Goodman, Youngstown, Ohio; Charles Carmody, Detroit, and T. O. Cooke, Chicago.

The protesting negroes claimed that the association holds its meetings on State property, has been formally welcomed by State and city dignitaries, and consequently that it's action is an insult to Massachusetts, where the first movement against slavery was born.

Urges All Autoists Be Fingerprinted

The finger points of every autodriver in the country ought to be taken at once in the crusade to stop crime, John L. Delay today declared to the national convention of finger-print experts at the State House.

Mr. Delay, who has given a good deal of attention to auto crimes, said the increased used of the auto has helped crime commission materially.

"Take a finger-print of every person who appears for a license to drive a car," he said. "When he applies for renewal of the license, take at least one finger again. You can compare those prints with the marks left on the steering wheel and other parts of bandit cars by the lawbreakers. They would also help to identify stolen cars."

Weds to Beat Law

MRS. PEDRO RAMIERZ.

LOVE BEATS LAW AFTER COUPLE'S ARREST

Springfield, Sept. 14.—Love beat the law when 17-year-old Elsie Stittsworth of Van Wert, Ohio, married Pedro Ramiers of Fargo, Argentina, in Boston U. S. Court. Justice of the Peace Charles H. Mackie of the Boston city clerk's office performed the ceremony after Judge Dowd granted a waiver of the five-day period.

Ramiers was arrested in Springfield August 31, charged with violation of the Mann Act. He was bound over to the U. S. Court in Boston. The case came before Judge Morton Tuesday. The girl stoutly denied her love for the dusky South American and a marriage instead of a trial resulted after the girl's mother had wired her permission from Ohio.

Department of Justice agents arrested the couple in Springfield while they were living together. Letters in their possession showed they had lived and traveled together considerably.

MADE HOOTCH AT 81 IN OLD FOLKS' HOME

Muskogee, Okla., Sept. 14.—An eighty-one-year-old inmate has lost her haven of refuge at the County Old Folks' Home here because the authorities discovered a complete wine-making apparatus hidden under her bed, together with several quarts of the completed product. Officials refused to disclose her name but said she had stolen the grapes from the county farm.

WIDOW EVICTED, HUNTS FOR HOME

"Somewhere in Boston" a destitute mother and her three children are wandering about the streets looking for a place to live.

"Somewhere in France" the man who had always provided for the little family lies in an unmarked grave, where he fell fighting for his country. He has given his all. He is powerless to provide any more.

Mrs. Mary Rock, the widow of a World War hero, who lost his life by a German shell in 1918, is leading her pathetic little procession through the streets, looking for a tenement.

No help has been offered. The little family was forcibly ejected from their tenement at No. 646 East Seventh street because they were unable to pay their rent. Their shabby furniture was piled on the curbstone, during the mother's absence, and the frightened children sat dejectedly beside it waiting for her return.

The furniture has been placed in the Eliot Storehouse by the landlord, Thomas J. Dunphy, who lives in the same house. The brother-in-law of the stricken family, Thomas McCarey of No. 86 East Seventh street, South Boston, has given the family temporary lodging at his home.

Alfred Rock, the husband, was killed by a German shell in October, 1918. Since that time the family income has consisted of his war risk insurance and the meagre earnings of the oldest daughter, Mary, who is seventeen years old. Mary was working when the ejectment process was served, and did not know of the mishap until she returned home at night.

READING CHIEF GETS LOCKED UP IN OWN JAIL

Thomas W. Crosswell, chief of the Reading police, was locked up today, but only for twenty minutes. He escaped being locked up until tomorrow morning by the barest chance.

He had stepped into the detention cell in the Woburn court to talk with a prisoner, shutting the door behind him. The spring lock snapped.

Meanwhile court adjourned and everyone left the building but Dennis Walsh, probation officer, whose desk is in a distant part of the building. It was thought that Chief Crosswell had taken his man back to Reading, and the frosted glass of the barred window in the door prevented his plight from attracting attention.

When the chief found he was locked in he pounded on the door and wore off the toe of his boot kicking the woodwork. The noise passed unnoticed until Walsh returned to the courtroom for a forgotten document. Then the chief was released.

State Troops Called When Pupils in 18 Schools Strike

Hazleton, Pa., Sept. 14.—The eighteen schools of McAdoo Borough, a mining town near here, were closed as a result of a strike of pupils against the election of new teachers to take the places of six whose positions were declared vacant because they declined to sign contracts for the current term until paid six weeks' salaries claimed to be due from last year.

Refusal of the children to go to the rooms in charge of the new teachers caused trouble and State troops were called.

NEW LEADER FOR THE SALVATION ARMY IN U. S.

Boston workers of the Salvation Army admitted today that Evangeline Booth, commander of the Army in America, was slated to go.

It was learned here that she was slated to go before the war, but that the great emergency created by the world conflict made it inadvisable to make any changes.

General Bramwell Booth, commander-in-chief of the Salvation Armies, with headquarters in London, admitted that he had not selected a successor for Miss Booth, but said he would be guided in part by her recommendations. No date had definitely been fixed for the change, but it would be made soon, he said.

STOCK KING PUT UP $200,000 FOR JORDAN

The sum of $200,000 was spent in a vain effort to save the life of Chester S. Jordan, convicted in Somerville for the murder of his wife.

According to a biographical story of Jesse Livermore, noted stock operator, appearing in a weekly, that sum was put up by Livermore, who is Jordan's brother-in-law, despite the fact that a short time before Livermore had dropped several million dollars in a cotton speculation and was almost broke.

Jesse Livermore

Despite the $200,000 fight carried on in his behalf, Jordan was executed in September, 1912. The fight was based on the fact that after the trial one of the jurors was found to be insane. This was the basis of the appeal to the Supreme Court, which, however, was unsuccessful. Livermore at the present time is reputed to be worth between twenty and thirty million dollars. He spent his boyhood and early youth in Somerville and his parents now reside in Acton.

DRUG VICTIM EXPIRES IN CELL

The "cold turkey cure" killed George "Jabber" Hamilton of No. 40 Union street, a dope addict. He was found dead in his cell in East Cambridge jail today.

Hamilton was in jail pending his trial in the Federal Court for having drugs in his possession. For two days he had pleaded to be given drugs. This was denied him, and his system could not stand the strain. Medical Examiner Dow pronounced death due to heart failure. The "cold turkey cure," being derived of any drug whatever, is the one fear of the drug addict.

I First Compounded This Newer Form of Iron For My Own Neighbors

Their Praise of This Remarkable Remedy Has Spread So Rapidly That Now Over 4,000,000 People Use Nuxated Iron Annually

Years ago I began to wonder at the great number of my own friends and neighbors who were always ailing, complaining and doctoring, without ever seeming to get any better. Both working men and their wives were frequently all tired out in the evening, and a great many were weak, nervous and run-down. One had pains in the back and thought he had kidney trouble. Another had pains around heart, palpitations and dizziness, and was sure he was suffering from heart disease. Still others had severe headaches, floating spots before the eyes, tender spots along the spine and a great variety of alarming symptoms.

For years I made a special study of this condition, consulting a great number of physicians and chemists. An immense number of investigations by physicians all over the country showed that these people out of every four you meet lack 100% iron in their blood. Lack of iron in the blood is the greatest of all devitalizing weaknesses. It is the iron in your blood that enables you to get the nourishment out of your food. Without iron, nothing you eat does you any good. Your heart, lungs and kidneys and all your vital organs get their nourishment from the blood stream, and when the blood lacks iron and is thin, pale and watery, you may suffer from the symptoms of a great number of diseases when the real and true cause of all your trouble is a lack of iron in the blood.

In the old days people often took metallic iron, which some physicians claim is not absorbed at all. In compounding this newer form of iron which I call Nuxated Iron, I employed a special form of iron, which is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples. Unlike the older forms of iron, it will not injure the teeth nor distress the stomach, and it is ready for almost immediate absorption and assimilation by the blood. It is the people whose blood is rich in iron who possess great strength, force and energy. If you are not strong or well you ought to try it to yourself to make the following test:

See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two 5-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times a day after meals for two weeks, then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. An astonishing number of nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the while, have greatly improved their health and increased their strength, energy and endurance simply by taking this newer form of iron.

For sale by Houghton & Dutton, Rexall Drug Co., A. F. Frye, S. S. Pierce, and Armstrong Co., and all good druggists.

2 MORE CLAIM TO BE BARBER CHAMPION

Sam Apatola of No. 1,442 Tremont street has started something that can be settled only with razors.

Recently Sam, a tonsorialist who takes pride in his efficiency, boasted that he held the world's record in the barber business, alleging that he could run up a shave, haircut, shampoo and massage in fourteen minutes, flat.

Hot on his proclamation came an indignant blurb from William Massina, who desired to know where Sam gets off to call himself the premier shaver of these United States. William declared that for his international record of a shave and haircut in six minutes flat, timed by a split-second stop watch, he was awarded a silver cup by a convention of barbers held here recently. He brought his pet razor and the cup to prove it.

OFFERS TO BET $200.

The ink had hardly dried upon that edition when, zooming at their respective mouths, in came Isidore Marrone, who flips hot towels at No. 1759 Washington street, and declared that both Sam and William were tyros, novitiates, amateurs, apprentices.

"I can haircut and shave two people while either one of them can take care of one," Isidore complained. "If Massino got a silver cup I'm entitled to a gold cup. I'll take on either of them for a side bet of $200."

His name and address had hardly been recorded when an excited individual brushed aside four office boys and thunderingly demanded to see the editor. He introduced himself as John Innello, proprietor of the shop where Isidore is employed.

When he was informed of Isidore's challenge to Sam and Bill, he let loose a laugh of scorn.

WOULD WAGER $1,000.

"Talk is of a cheapness," he sneered. "Those three — ha, ha! With one hand tied behind my back I can shave and haircut three men while they take care of one. I can work in the dark and beat them. I can make better time than any of them, and use a butcher knife for a razor. I will post a side bet of $1,000 and bet that I can beat any one of them, or all of them.

"It is time they either put up or shut up."

It remains only for some tonsorial Tex Rickard to arrange the match.

New York, Sept. 14.—The lure of the "big top" has lost its hold on Robert Ringling, son of the great circus owner. Instead of following in his father's footsteps and carrying on the circus that made Barnum famous, Robert has turned to grand opera. He is a baritone of unusual ability and will sing the feature role in "Traviata" this year. He has already sung in "Pagliacci" and "Rigoletta."

ARRAIGN YOUNG IN H. V. GREENE PROSECUTIONS

A new name in the H. V. Greene Company prosecutions was revealed today when Arthur P. Young, an architect of No. 177 State street, was arraigned in Superior Court on thirteen indictments.

Young, said to have been at one time president of Massachusetts Motors, Inc., appeared before Judge Fisk and pleaded not guilty to one indictment. He was released in $5,000 bail on this indictment and in $500 personal recognizance on the others.

The indictment to which he pleaded was for larceny in twenty-seven counts from the Commercial Finance Corporation, Mutual Finance Corporation, Guaranty Securities, Inc., and Massachusetts Motors.

A short time later today Henry V. Greene, who posted bonds of $50,000 yesterday, appeared in court and was arraigned on thirteen indictments. He pleaded not guilty and was released under the bonds which he had furnished.

It was learned that the other indictments against Young charged him in many counts with conspiracy to steal, conspiracy to sell mortgaged property without consent, conspiracy to fraudulently lend and invest money and fraudulent advertising. His bail was furnished by Louis Schwartz.

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Darkens So Naturally Nobody Can Tell

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering sage and the musty mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive.

TRY MAGNESIA FOR STOMACH TROUBLE

Bisurated Magnesia Neutralizes Stomach Acidity, Stops and Prevents Food Fermentation, Sour Gassy Stomach and Acid Indigestion.

Doubtless if you are a sufferer from indigestion, you have already tried pepsin, charcoal, drugs and various cigarette aids and you know these things will not cure your trouble—in some cases do not even give relief.

But before giving up hope and deciding you are a chronic dyspeptic, just try the effect of a little Bisurated Magnesia—not the ordinary commercial carbonate, citrate, or milk, but the pure Bisurated Magnesia which you can obtain from practically any druggist in either powdered or tablet form.

Take a teaspoonful of the powder or three compressed tablets with a little water after your next meal, and see what a difference this makes. It will instantly neutralize the dangerous, harmful acid in the stomach which now causes your food to ferment and sour, making gas, wind, flatulence, heartburn and the bloated or heavy, dizzy feeling that seems to follow most everything you eat.

You will find that provided you take a little Bisurated Magnesia immediately after a meal, you can eat almost anything and enjoy it without any danger of pain or discomfort to follow.

A Talk To Mothers—Not Frivolous, But Thoughtful Mothers.

Each winter season brings coughs, colds, catarrh, pneumonia, "flu", and fear-loving mothers dread the onslaught of these dangerous diseases.

Thoughtful mothers often provide against the contingency of such coughs. Such mothers suspend less money and have fewer hours of anxiety, and sleepless vigil, watching at the bedside of a loved one.

Some mothers, inexperienced, do not know how to provide in advance for the colds and coughs that are bound to appear.

Here is a simple inexpensive way—practiced by over 300,000 mothers during the past twelve years, as a great volume of testimony proves. Not later than the first cold or rainy day, just make up a full pint of home made cough and cold medicine—using 2½ ozs. of the pure and genuine Mentho-Laxene, mixed with home made sugar syrup and honey. Costs less than $1.00

Mentho-Laxene is no pure—contains no chloroform, opium or narcotic drugs,—that it is given to infants without harm. Children and adults like its delicious flavor—and its marvelously quick action in stopping colds and coughs before the dangerous complications set in. There is nothing said so pure, so prompt, so inexpensive.

Resolve to be a "Thoughtful Mother". Get Essence Mentho-Laxene today and drive the cold and cough away. "Best ever sold for cough and cold". Send 6 cents for sample. The Blackburn Products Co., Dorton, Ohio

ANTI-KIPLING FEELING GROWS AT CAPITAL

By Universal Service.

Washington, Sept. 14.—Resentment in official Washington increased rather than diminished today against Rudyard Kipling's declaration that America had got the gold of the world while England was saving her soul.

The British poet's denial was frankly disbelieved. It was the opinion of high administration officials and leading senators that it was a retraction rather than a denial.

Senator Borah of Idaho said tonight:

"I assumed that Kipling was correctly quoted and I still assume so."

Borah reiterated his earlier characterization of the Kipling interview as "the raw English with all the official veneer and diplomatic ointment peeled off," adding:

"What a delightful associate Great Britain would make in a league with five votes to our one."

U. S. STILL AWAITS GOLD.

Senator Frank B. Willis, Republican, of Ohio, who succeeded President Harding in the Senate, declared the obvious reply to Kipling, was that "his statements are not true." The Senator continued:

"Mr. Kipling says America has England's gold. Not quite. He should recall that Europe owes us in principal alone ten billion dollars and Great Britain alone owes us approximately five billions. Instead of America having their gold, Europe has got ours.

"If will agree with Mr. Kipling that England saved her soul and we get some satisfaction because we helped her save it.

"When American supplies were being rushed across the ocean on hundreds of ships and our soldier boys by the millions were going into the front line, many to sacrifice their lives, to stem the on-rushing enemy who, until the Americans arrived, had threatened to overrun the English and the French and the Belgians, no Englishmen then could have been found who was so blinded to the facts and so ungrateful as to give voice to the sentiments which have now been expressed. Such a man whose honest people, and positively no charge whatsoever for interest or insurance.

CANNOT BE BULLIED.

"It is no fault of ours that American pluck and pep and courage and driving power won the World War two years before Mr. Kipling and others like him thought it would be possible to win it.

"The United States is the only nation that went into the war asking for nothing and getting absolutely less than she asked for."

"However, if Mr. Kipling and others who are devoted to the League of Nations think the United States can be frightened, abused or cajoled into surrendering its independence or cancellation of just debts at the behest of a little group of international bankers, who care much for bonds and profits and little for national pride, he is greatly mistaken."

PERSHING STIRRED.

It is known that official representatives of Great Britain, both in London and Washington, wish that Kipling would have kept his opinion of the United States to himself.

Perhaps the most eloquent expression of American feeling concerning the poet's declaration that America came in on the day of the armistice without a disposition to see the thing through was the flash in General Pershing's eye when he read it. Because of a position as official head of the American Army he could not permit himself to be quoted.

Secretary of War Weeks revealed the fact that Pershing wanted to take the war to Berlin when he said:

"All the evidence on that subject indicates that the British and French leaders were responsible for the armistice, and it was entered into over the protest of the responsible military and civilian American representatives in France."

Coming as it did, coincidentally with the Encyclopaedia Britannia's dismissal of former Secretary of War Baker as "an American politician," and a "pacifist," Kipling's assertions had an increased effect. Here are some American rejoiners:

"ROT," CAPPER SAYS.

Senator Glase of Virginia: "I happened to be at General Pershing's headquarters in France just before the armistice was signed. I know that Pershing wanted to march to Berlin. It was Foch and Haig that wanted to quit."

Senator Capper of Kansas: "Dam lot of rot. It is calculated to stir up bad feeling. His charges are absurd . . ."

Secretary of the Navy Denby: "I do not care to comment adversely upon the harsh criticism he makes of my country. I can hardly believe that Mr. Kipling said the things accredited to him, and if he did so he has been misinformed."

HOLD OUT FOR 48 HOURS DESPITE RAISE

Somersworth, N. H., Oct. 14.—Striking operatives of the Great Falls Manufacturing Company, who voted to refuse to return to work despite the approximate restoration of the wages scale in force before the textile strike was called, were prepared today to continue indefinitely their fight for a forty-eight-hour week, strike leaders said. Officials of the company declared that they had received no notification of the action and that operatives were gradually returning to work.

Drinks Hootch, and Thinks He Has Lost Millions

New York, Sept. 14.—Here are some of the things that the New York brand of synthetic hootch will do to you! A battered gentleman who said he was Michael Quinn was found in the gutter, where, he said, he was looking for $10,000,000 he had just lost out of his pocket. Policeman Thomas Toolan found a man in the street whom he believed to be dead. He was only full of hootch. Another victim told the police that he was George Washington.

2 FISHING TRIPS IN A WEEK NET 215,000 LBS.

Cap'n Ernest Parsons of the tight little fishing schooner Killarney walked up the fish pier today with his hat cocked a little over one eye and a fifty-cent cigar at a regular jeeannon angle.

Cap'n Ernie and the Killarney have broken a record. They have made two trips from the banks this week, the two catches aggregating 215,000 pounds, a feat which no other sailing vessel has ever performed. Leaving port last Thursday the Killarney was back from Georges Monday with 115,000 pounds. Leaving again Tuesday the Killarney turned up at the pier today with another 100,000 pounds.

The crew have been on their feet or in their duries almost continuously since they arrived on the banks Tuesday night, fishing in the daylight and dressing fish at night by torchlight.

Six Irish Girls Are Painted Green by Masked Men

Belfast, Sept. 14.—Six young women of Killarney, known to be in sympathy with the Republicans, were painted green by armed and masked men who entered the young women's homes and found them in bed.

Brigadier-General O'Daly, who is in charge of the National Army forces in the town, is investigating the incident and has promised to take extreme measures with the culprits when they are found.

AVERAGE RATE OF TAXES IS UP $1.47

The average tax rate of the cities and towns in this State is $27.11.

The average rate last year was $25.64.

Which means that the tax-paying public will have to pay an average of $1.47 on every $1,000 of property in excess of what they paid last year.

The new rates, based on the returns from 238 cities and towns, were announced today by Henry Follansbee Long, the State tax commissioner.

Oxford leads all, with the rate of $44.10. Hopedale and Gosnold, each with a $16 rate, have no contestants for low place. West Tisbury comes next with a rate of $12 and with Manchester, $13.50, goes to make up the only four places in the State that have a rate of $15 or less.

Wellfleet, with a rate of $42.30, follows Oxford's sad trail. The other towns in excess of the $40 rate are: Monson, $41; and Paxton, $40.50.

The largest decrease of the year was in Tewksbury, where a drop of $11.50 cut the rate to $23.20. The largest increase came to Oxford, with a jump of $21.60 over the 1921 rate.

Long said the Massachusetts valuations are closer to the real cash value of the property than in any other State in the Union.

All the decreases in rates are directly traceable to smaller appropriations by the town meetings and local governments, he said. Tewksbury, for example, appropriated $75,479 this year as compared with $105,634 a year ago.

The net debt for the entire State is $390,000,000.

GETS $30,000 FOR SAVING MAN'S LIFE

New Brunswick, N. J., Sept. 14.—The fancies of the fiction writers were verified to a certain extent here when Capt. John W. Vanderveer learned that to him had been left the $30,000 estate of Patrick Lang of Atlantic Highlands as a reward for saving Lang's life 17 years ago.

The estate was willed originally to Mrs. Lang, with the proviso that at her death it should go to Vanderveer. Mrs. Lang has just died.

Lang was rescued by Vanderveer in September, 1905 off the rocks at Port Monmouth, N. J. Lang was one of five passengers in a motorboat returning from a fishing trip. They were swept upon the rocks off the Port, and Capt. Vanderveer, standing near in his motorboat, saw their peril. Two of the men were saved by other fishermen and Capt. Vanderveer plunged into the sea and got Lang safely to the Jack. Two of the five men were drowned.

SALEM PROBES RUM RUNNING BY AIRPLANE

What is believed to be one of the most daring and extensive rum running plots uncovered is being investigated by Federal Prohibition agents, who have been scouring the North Shore from Revere to Marblehead in an effort to locate a "mother ship," which unloads booze from an airplane.

For the past three nights squads of enforcement agents have been scanning the skies and the seas for a trace of the mysterious plane which is thought to have dropped several barrels of booze to a waiting truck Sunday night.

The tip on the booze running plot was telephoned to the Marblehead police department Sunday night. The informant said that a large plane was seen to come from over the harbor, in the direction of Salem, swoop low over a marshy stretch of ground near the "Neck" and drop three barrels.

A truck, which until then had been apparently having tire trouble on the road was hastily started. Men ran from it and picked up the barrels and put them on the truck which disappeared. It is thought that such operations have been carried on for some time with a ship, cruising outside the three-mile limit, supplying the plane.

Extra! Very Latest! All About Pig-Calling Contest

Vincennes, Ind., Sept. 14.—"Piggie pib-who-o-i—ie!"

That is the call that is echoing and re-echoing throughout the length and breadth of this county as the farmers practice for the "hog-calling" contest to be staged Saturday at the Knox County farmers' picnic. Interest in the contest is at high pitch, and rivalry is keen, according to W. J. Piggott, Jr., county agent.

The musical tones in the call, the distance the voice carries and the effect the call has on hogs will all enter into the selection of a champion.

SEEKS TO PUNISH MALDEN POLICEMEN

The Malden aldermen have received a recommendation from Police Commissioner Stevens that Patrolmen Daniel E. Riley and Timothy E. McCarthy be suspended for five days each, with loss of pay, in punishment for their alleged joy ride into the Maplewood district several days ago.

BROKEN LOVE OF MRS. HARRIS REVEALED

New York, Sept. 14.—Through the announcement of her approaching marriage to Zach C. Barber, a broker, the divorce of Mrs. Henry B. Harris has become known. Mrs. Harris is the widow of Henry B. Harris, former theatrical producer, who died in the Titanic disaster.

She entered his profession after Harris's death, and was for a time the only successful woman impresario.

In 1916 she married Leslie L. Consolloy, a young man identified with her productions. Now, it develops, they were divorced soon afterward. The marriage was known only to Mrs. Harris' acquaintances.

"I married him; then I divorced him," said Mrs. Harris. "The details are my own affair."

Are you worrying about your coal supply?

WITHIN the past few years devices have been perfected which make possible the use of oil in central heating plants in homes. And while these devices have been in use regularly, the present coal shortage emphasizes their value.

The Standard Oil Company of New York, in keeping with its policy of service, has recently perfected a special fuel that is ideal for such oil-burning heating plants—Socony Furnace Oil.

The cleanliness and convenience of oil as a fuel are well known. It saves labor: it is remarkably effective. It is also remarkably reasonable in cost.

MINISTER IS SECRETLY MARRIED

Haverhill, Sept. 14.—Sixty-year-old Rev. Silas B. Morse, assistant pastor of the First Baptist Church, surprised his friends by secretly marrying Miss Jennie Bell McIntyre, thirty-eight years old, a Georgetown Sunday school teacher.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Andrew G. Littlefield, of Newton, N. H., who has attracted attention throughout the New England States because of his rapid fire marriage ceremonies. He is reputed to have married a young couple, who "simply couldn't wait any longer" as they stood beneath an apple tree in front of his home.

The courtship which culminated in the quiet wedding in New Hampshire grew from a meeting in the Sunday School class at the Georgetown First Baptist Church.

Miss McIntyre was the Sunday School teacher. The Rev. Morse was substituting as pastor of the church, during the absence of the regular minister. Few of the couple's friends knew of the romance, which followed.

The bride is a bookkeeper in a local office and left a week ago on her vacation. "You'll receive a surprise while I'm gone," were her parting words to fellow employes. And they did. Word came from the little New Hampshire town that the couple had been married.

The minister's first wife died only a year ago.

Poiret Disappointed at Our Low Value of Female Beauty

New York, Sept. 14.—Paul Poiret, Parisian fashion creator, wearing a light pearl gray fedora, a loose belted coat of tan hue and gray checkered trousers as he sailed for France, said he had been slightly disappointed at the low value put by Americans on feminine beauty. He added:

"I went to the race track and saw many men who were earnestly at work. Many straw hats. Many fat cigars, a great many pencils and eye-glasses. No women. No flowers. Beauty is not as indispensable in our country. My views might have been changed, however, had I gone to Newport or Southampton."

'OTHER WOMAN' TOOK TRIPS ON HIS 1-MAN CAR

Rochester, N. H., Sept. 14.—The third day of the hearings on the $10,000 alienation of affections suit which Mrs. Gertrude J. Young has brought against Annie L. Nason was devoted largely to the testimony of character witnesses introduced by the plaintiff, who accuses Mrs. Nason of too great intimacy with Young.

Mrs. Young, the witnesses said, was prominent in church and fraternal circles, played the organ in her home church, and taught a Sunday school class.

In support of Mrs. Young's charge that her husband frequently called Mrs. Nason on the telephone, her attorney introduced toll slips showing that sixty-nine calls had been made between the two homes from January to August of this year.

Mrs. Edna Littlefield, who conducts a restaurant at Hampton, where Mr. Young dined, told of seeing Young get off the electric car and put a package in Mrs. Nason's mail box. She said she had seen Mrs. Nason in vestibule of car with Young.

That Mrs. Nason accompanied Young on his trips on a one-man car was testified to by Herbert R. Lamprey, an employe of the Exeter & Hampton Railway. Had seen her sit on a box in front end and talk to him while he operated the car.

Mrs. Addie J. Smith of Exeter told of seeing Young and Mrs. Nason together at Hampton Beach in 1921.

After A. G. Cole, Frank Brass, Mr. Scott and others testified the case for the plaintiff was closed. Attorney George T. Hughes then made the opening for the defence and court adjourned. It is expected the case will take the rest of the week to finish.

ANOTHER AMERICAN JOINS THE PEERAGE

Another American has renounced his American citizenship and joined the British Peerage. This time it is Edmund Maurice Burke Roche, grandson of the late Frank Work of New York. Mr. Roche is now the Baron Fermoy.

He renounced his citizenship to accept the titles and estates left him by his father, the late James Boothby Burke Roche, third Baron of Fermoy. A twin brother, Francis Burke Roche, is listed in the Peerage as "Honorable Francis George Burke Roche," but he retained his American citizenship and is a New York banker.

When the S. S. Majestic docked Attorney Untermeyer, who has in many investigations named for him as he has years, was busy reading the latest editions of the papers and puffing his indispensable cigars. He was abroad for business and pleasure, so he announced.

BOY'S SKULL BROKEN WHEN HIT BY AUTO

Eight-year-old Alfred Heyman is lying at the home with a fractured skull and concussion of the brain, received when he was struck and knocked down by an automobile owned and operated by Wilfred Much of No. 48 Evelyn street, Mattapan. The boy lives only a few doors away at No. 29 Evelyn street. He was playing in the street in front of his home at the time. Mr. Much took him to a doctor. Later he was taken home.

GERMANY WILL PAY THIRD OF TOTAL DUE

Berlin, Sept. 14 (By International News Service).—Germany has sent a note to France and England stating that she will pay 500,000 pounds sterling (normally $2,430,000), next Monday as an instalment upon the "clearing" payment due August 15, the balance being promised as soon as possible.

The note pointed out that 500,000 pounds is only one-third of the sum due, but that the failure to pay any more was due to the collapse of the Belgian-German negotiations on indemnity bonds and the further decline in the value of the German mark, which made the payment of a larger sum impossible."

A note has been received from Belgium demanding that Germany turn over at once two German treasury bonds for 50,000,000 gold marks, payable in gold, and with the maturity dates fixed at August 15 and September 15.

Seeks $2,000 Damages For Injuries in Row With Women

Central Falls, R. I., Sept. 14.—On August 21 Sadie Marza became embroiled in an argument with Sarah Abelahad and Anna Denhot, during which, she asserts, the two women struck her and knocked her to the ground, inflicting painful injuries.

The Marza woman has now entered suit in the Superior Court, placing damages at $2,000.

2 DYING AFTER OVERTURN OF AUTO TRUCK

Gloucester, Sept. 14.—Two employes of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company are believed dying at the Addison Gilbert Hospital here as a result of injuries they received in a peculiar automobile accident on Essex avenue here.

They are William G. McDermott, wire chief of the Manchester phone office, and Otto S. Sweet, district foreman. Both have been unconscious since the accident.

Only one person saw the accident. He said the two were riding in one of the telephone company's trucks, on a clear street, when the car suddenly zig-zagged across the road, ran up a small embankment, and overturned, pinning both men beneath it.

Police cannot determine what caused the accident. Physicians say that each man has a fractured skull.

Restaurants take ice the year 'round

THEY are in the business of handling food on a large scale. they know the economy of ice even in mid-winter.

They have to keep the crisp, delicate flavor and preserve the full nutritive value which stale food loses. Ice in a good restaurant or hotel is indispensable at all seasons of the year. The same is true in a home.

Milk spoils rapidly; so does meat; vegetables wilt and fruit starts to rot.

Why risk this loss when ice costs but a few cents a day?

$1,000,000 INSURANCE AGAINST POLA NEGRI'S MARRIAGE SOUGHT

PRODUCERS FEAR HER BEAUTY

Polish Actress Now in U. S. Is More Exotically Seductive Than on Screen

By ANNE DUNLAP.

New York, Sept. 14. — Pola Negri—the shadowed depths of her eyes, the pale marble of her skin, the thin scarlet line of her mouth! A more seductive beauty in reality than ever could be caught in the flickering silver of the screen.

In a voice of velvet she tells of her joy in being at last in the land of her dreams, America. She hopes that the American people will not think it is herself that they have seen in the soul-devastating woman of "passion," and in all the long list of her roles.

Yet even as she speaks the exotic aura of her beauty presses insistently upon one's consciousness, this beauty the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation seeks to insure against marriage for $1,000,000.

LOVES HER ART MORE.

A representative of the company acknowledged having applied, through Ruben Samuels, insurance broker, for rates on such a policy to cover the three months of her contract in this country.

The Polish screen star, who has one divorced husband in the background, Count Dombski, arrived with her thin, crimson lips and said:

"Marriage is not for the artist. It is impossible for woman to separate her two lives, that of the home and of her career. She must neglect one or the other, and which ever means most to her nature will triumph.

"I do not know if that is true of all women. I only know it would be impossible for me to be married and continue in my art."

CANNOT DIVIDE LOVE.

Slim white fingers, slipping from the long lace sleeve of her gown, toyed with a dazzling jeweled medallion, which hung from her neck on a fragile black cord.

It was round and large, of platinum spun in indescribable intricacies and ablaze with diamonds. In the centre was an enormous pearl, the color of her own skin and mounted with the skill of a Cellini.

Adolph Zucker, translating for the actress, was speaking again:

"She says she would wish to have a home and children if she were married, and that she would wish to give to these and her husband her whole heart and her whole time. She cannot imagine being able to do that just now."

Her work and her art are everything to her now. She does not believe that the other life could reconcense her for what she would lose should she give up her career at this stage.

MAY YET WED.

"Perhaps within a few years—two or three—if she has had enough of acting, then she will marry."

The striking details of her costume intruded. An extremely little tricorne hat of black satin beaver edged with silver metal lace, a long gown of black taffeta, its circular cut skirt almost sweeping the satin shod feet, its yoke and long tight sleeves of black lace. Her wrap was of black chiffon velvet, lined throughout with shirred black lace.

On the second finger of her right hand she wore a solitary ring, a huge square white diamond held by a frail undermounting.

The million-dollar "love insurance," as that sought in the case of Pola Negri has been termed, is looked upon by producers as a necessary precaution, a representative of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation said. He added:

CANNOT BAN MARRIAGE.

"Public policy makes it impossible for us to make contracts forbidding marriage. We have turned to the insurance policy as a possible protection. Of course, the premiums may be prohibitive.

"Our broker tells us that Lloyd is looking up rates now and when they have been submitted to us we will decide what to do."

Hairs Will Vanish After This Treatment

(Toilet Helps)

You can keep your arms, neck or face free from hair or fuzz by the occasional use of plain delatone and in using it you need have no fear of marring or injuring the skin. A thick paste is made by mixing some of the powdered delatone with water. Then spread on the hairs and after 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and all traces of hair have vanished. Be careful, however, to get real delatone and mix fresh.

Curtises Planning to Make Trip Around World Soon, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN.

BACK again on the North Shore are the Richard D. Sears, who have returned from Dark Harbor, Me., to "Westwood," their Pride's Crossing estate.

"Westwood" was occupied during July and August by the Payne Whitneys of New York, who last Summer had the Cochrane cottage at Mingo Beach. There was no end of entertaining at "Westwood," for the Whitneys are noted for their hospitality.

Miss Joan Whitney, the daughter of the house, had numerous guests during the Summer, among them being her cousin, Miss Barbara Whitney, daughter of the Harry Payne Whitneys. Both Joan and her cousin were presented last Winter and, with a host of Vanderbilt connections to back them up, they were among the most widely feted buds in Gotham.

During their stay at the Shore the Whitneys made several trips to Saratoga for the races. None of the famous Whitney horses, by the way, were brought to Pride's Crossing, but were shipped to Saratoga from Belmont Park. "Jack" Whitney, the son of the house, is a very keen sportsman, and he was on the victorious Myopia polo team which played in the recent Thousand Islands tournament.

The "Dick" Sears are always greatly missed when they are away from the Shore, where they are among the notable members of the Boston contingent. It was last Fall that the North Shore saw one of the most brilliant nuptial events, when their only daughter, Miss Miriam Sears, was married to Jimmie Minot, Jr., the wedding being solemnized at St. John's Church, Beverly Farms.

I HEAR that Mrs. Edwin U. Curtis of Bay State road and Nahant is making plans for a trip around the world. Since the tragedy which entered the Curtis household some months ago when Police Commissioner Curtis passed away very suddenly, Mrs. Curtis and her two daughters, Penelope and Margaret Curtis, have been living very quietly in Nahant.

Margaret Curtis was to have been presented the coming season, but her debut will not take place. Instead she will accompany her mother and older sister on their trip around the world. Penelope Curtis, at the time of her father's death, was traveling on the Mediterranean. She returned home as quickly as possible.

It was with the very attractive group of 1920 girls that Penelope Curtis made her debut. Among her sister debutantes is Miss Hope Gaston, who stumped so hard for her father, William Gaston—and evidently so successfully.

Prominent among the other buds of 1920 are Mrs. "Tom" Rice—she was Elizabeth Lyman then—Mrs. Henry Holt, Jr. (Elizabeth Cabot), a bride of last week; Olivia James, who is establishing quite a reputation for herself as a clever designer of stage settings; Susan Sturgis, whose engagement to Mr. Goodale has just been announced; Louise Fessenden, who won renown for her delightful acting as the heroine of the latest Vincent Club show; Natalie Winslow, daughter of Rear Admiral and Mrs. Cameron Winslow, who is having a very gay Summer at Newport, where she is becoming noted as one of the crack tennis players at the Casino; Mrs. William Whitman, 3rd (Marjorie Warren), and a number of others of equal charm.

BUILDING new homes seems to be quite the rage along the North Shore this season. Among the latest to join the ranks are the Ellery Sedgwicks of Walnut street and "Long Hill," Montserrat. The new structure is to be erected on a hill in back of the old home, and I understand that it was the most important dwelling permit granted in Beverly for some time.

Last week-end the Sedgwicks went over to Stockbridge for the marriage of their niece, Miss Christine Sedgwick, whose marriage on Saturday to the author, John P. Marquand, was one of the notable ceremonials of the Berkshire region. Miss Henrietta Sedgwick, daughter of the Ellery Sedgwicks, served as one of the bridesmaids at the wedding.

MRS. S. PARKMAN SHAW of Marlboro street has as her guest at her Lenox country home her sister, Miss Marie Bramwell. The latter has just returned from abroad on the Adriatic. Mrs. Shaw, prior to her marriage, was Miss Gertrude Bramwell.

POWERS DREAD AGGRESSION BY TURK ARMY

London, Sept. 14 (By the Associated Press).—The impression is growing here that a Turkish peace can only be arranged in a large international conference in which Russia, Rumania, Bulgaria and the other Balkan States participate.

This impression is based in part upon the renewed expression of Russia's attitude regarding the straits of the Dardanelles, as contained in her note of protest against the allied action in Constantinople, sent recently to Great Britain, in which she demands the question be settled primarily by the powers that use the Black Sea as a outlet to the ocean.

FEARS ARE ACUTE.

If the fear regarding the French position is removed, the other fears will be immediately lessened, but at present they are acute. Turkish military aggression is feared, military activity in the Balkan countries is feared, incursion of the Russian Soviets into the troubled arena is feared. Behind all is the restless menace of the immense Moslem population of India and the other Mussulman communities.

Each day brings fresh reports of the intense feeling aroused in the Mohammedan countries by the Turkish victory in Anatolia. In British India the Moplems there are greatly excited.

PALESTINE EXCITED.

The Daily Express today publishes a Cairo dispatch quoting information just received of equally intense excitement in Palestine. News of the Russian Soviet's note of protest against the allied action in Constantinople had not reached there when the dispatch was filed, but it will fall on soil prepared to receive it.

Fear of an attack on Constantinople by the Turkish nationalists before the allies can reach an agreement has brought to the front the question of the whereabouts of the main Kemalist army, which apparently never entered Smyrna. The army may be on its way to the straits by secret forced marches.

Paris, Sept. 14.—Marshal Franchet d' Esperey considers the situation in the Near East very serious, says the Echo de Paris.

"Don't forget that the Bosphorus at certain points is only 800 yards wide," he said, "and that all the European quarters in Constantinople might well find themselves under the fire of Turkish four-inch guns.

"However, I believe Mustapha Kemal Pasha is too intelligent and prudent to commit such a blunder."

ANGRY TURKS IN SMYRNA SLAY 350 PERSONS

Athens, Sept. 14.—Persistent but unconfirmed rumors reaching here relate that Smyrna is in great disorder.

A well-known resident of the city, who arrived here today, said that when the Kemalist army entered, a hand grenade exploded amongst the cavalry. An officer was wounded. The Turks were infuriated and began to loot. In the evening, the Armenian quarter was raided. He said that women were outraged and all told 150 persons were killed. The same thing occurred in the Greek quarter, where he estimated the number of killed at 200.

Constantinople, Sept. 14 (By the Associated Press).—American sub chaser No. 96 has arrived here with reports of the appalling situation at Mudania, where the harbor is filled with the bodies of refugees who stampeded when the last vessel departed before the Turkish occupation.

Fifty thousand refugees, without food or water, lined the waterfront for miles in the broiling sun, with arms uplifted, pleading to be taken off.

Paris, Sept. 14.—Former Premier Venizelos of Greece, for whose return to power a strong movement is under way in Athens, will never consent to work with King Constantine, say his friends here. But at the same time he will not refuse his aid in saving the country from what he terms Constantine's blunders.

GIANT STILL FOUND IN LEXINGTON

Patrolman John C. Russell of the Lexington police discovered the largest moonshine plant ever unearthed in Lexington in the home of James Wiles on Walnut street, in the outlying section of the town.

In the cellar of the house, a 100-gallon still was found in full operation, the heat being provided by two burners of a kind that produced a gas from kerosene with an intense heat. Joseph Gordon, who is said to work at the Wiles place, was arrested, charged with keeping and exposing for sale intoxicating liquors. The police also seized ten gallons of the finished moonshine product, 1350 gallons of mash, 400 pounds of sugar and six 5-gallon cans of the kerosene oil.

MOTHER-VOTER HIS IDEAL WOMAN

"Who is the typical twentieth century woman?"

This question was put up to a number of New England Congregationalists. Rev. William E. Gilroy, editor of The Congregationalist, says this:

"She is highly educated and has studied biology, psychology, hygiene and chemistry.

"She is physically alive, and knows the laws of health. She plays golf and tennis, and can swim.

"She is (in the best sense) sophisticated, and enters her married life with clear-eyed understanding. The day of 'innocence' is happily gone.

"She is able, if need be, to earn her own living; and in most cases has been trained for some business, trade or profession.

"She is a voter and is learning to organize with other women to enact laws for the protection of motherhood and childhood, and the development of real civilization.

"She belongs to the Parent-Teachers' Association and thus extends the influence of her home throughout the community.

"She is attractive, interesting, vital—a real Personality who regards motherhood as a great Profession, assumes its duties voluntarily, and performs them scientifically as well as with love."

NOT A PAJAMA PARADE—JUST PAYING AN ELECtion Bet! Rebekah Cauble (left), and Betty Marsh, Boston actresses, wagered O'Brien would win over Pelletier. You know what happened! So the cuties had to don prison garb from the Convict Ship Success and parade the length of Tremont street. No Oscar, the suits weren't made of silk—just plain sack cloth.

WHAT DO YOU HAFTA DO TO BE A PASSENGER? Here's how they make football stars at Harvard, where the season has just opened. Behold the charging machine with a full charge. It develops line men—makes 'em tough as a restaurant steak. The chaps taking the ride are backfield players—lucky guys! Some new and promising linemen have reported.

OH MIGOSH, THE NEW GYROSCOPE DANCE IS Here! S'all right, folks, even the censor has passed it—but di mi, he never tried it. 'Cause only a few can do it. It's a solo affair and all you do is wear a gyroscope (a balancing device) and then try to dance. Try is right. The machine has a tendency to keep you upright. Photo shows Miss Lulul Sharon of Boston performing some difficult gyroscopic steps.

WHO COULD FAIL TO Fall for This Fall Chapeau? It hails direct from Paris and is fashioned of black and white taffeta, with trimmings of embroidered wheat leaves. Ideal for any type of features. It's not hard to make. Try it and see. (International News Reel.)

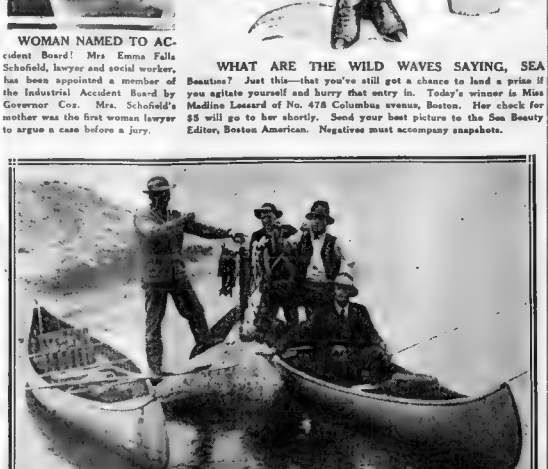
"MISS AMERICA" MAY LOOK IN ON BEANTOWN ON Her Way Back Home! Being the country's premier beauty is not all to the cow's calf. Take the word of Miss Mary Katherine Campbell for it. Just now she's spending half her time in New York trying out for the movies. The rest of her moments are taken up in trying to escape the mobs that follow her. Here we see her under the protection of one of New York's stalwart motorcycle John Laws, who showed her the city. (International News Reel).

WHO IS THE PRETTIEST Matron in New England? A large question, of course! But here is one of the contenders—Mrs. Richard Hooker of Boston and Newport. Boston artists are quite excited about her. Know any more?



"COME FORTH INTO THE LIGHT OF THINGS; LET NATURE BE YOUR Teacher!" The wholesome smell of the open woods, the lure of fish and game is rampant now in New England. The duck season is on Saturday (in Massachusetts) and the fish are biting at their best, veteran anglers report. We offer this photograph as proof of the whoppers, both trout and bass, waiting to be caught at Debaconeag Lake, Me. Pack up that old camp kit of yours and try a trip to Marshfield (for duck) or a nearby lake on your next week end.

START THIS NEW STORY TODAY

Sir Nicholas Thormonde, a wealthy Englishman, wounded and blinded in one eye in action, starts writing his diary in Paris while the war is still on. He is sick of life. The war has robbed it of all that a young man can find of joy. He tries to amuse himself in the company of several women friends, who, he feels, seek his company for his money and not for the love he craves.

Now Go On With the Story

IS some nerve being touched by the new treatment? I seem alternately to be numb and perfectly indifferent to how the war is going, and then madly interested. But I am too sensitive to leave my flat for any meals—I drive whenever one of the "fluffies" (this is what Maurice calls the widow, the divorcee and other rejoicers of men's war hearts) can take me in her motor—no one else has a motor—There is no petrol for ordinary people.

"It reminds one of Louis XV.'s supposed reply to his daughters"

I said to Maurice yesterday "When they asked him to make them a good road to the chateau of their dear gouvernante, the Duchess de la Hove—he assured them he could not; his mistress cost him too much! So they paid for it themselves, hence the "Chemin des Dames."

"What reminds you of what —" Maurice asked, looking horribly puzzled.

"The fluffies being able to get the petrol."

"But I don't see the connection"

"It was involved—the mattresses got the money which should have made the road in those days, and now——"

Maurice was annoyed with himself; he could not yet see, and no wonder, for it was involved—but I am angry that the widow and the divorcee have both motors and I none'

"Poor Odette—she hates taxis! Why should she not have a motor" You are grimchant, Mon Cher —since she takes you out, too!"

"Believe me, Maurice, I am grateful. I shall repay all their kindnesses—they have all indicated how I can best do so—but I like to keep them waiting. It makes them more keen"

Maurice laughed again nervously.

"It is divine to be so rich, Nicholas!"

All sorts of people come to talk to me and have tea (I have a small hoard of sugar sent from a friend in Spain) Amongst them an ancient guardsman in some inspection berth here—he, like Burton, knows the world.

He they take presents from him, he tells me. They profess intense love which he returns, and then comes the moment the. Like me is disgustingly rich) He offers them a present, some accept at once, those he no longer considers, others hesitate, and say it is too much, they only want his affection—He presses them, they yield—they too are wiped off the list—and now he has no one to care for, since he has not been able to find one who refuses his gifts. It would be certainly my case also—were I to try

"Women"—he said to me last night—"are the only pleasure in life—men and hunting bring content and happiness, work brings satisfaction, but women and their ways are the only pleasure."

"Even when you know it is all for some personal gain?"

"Even so, once you have realized that, it does not matter, you take the joy from another point of view, you have to eliminate vanity out of the affair, your personal vanity is hurt, my dear boy, when you feel it is your possessions, not yourself they crave, but if you analyze that it does not take away from the pleasure their beauty gives you—the tangible things are there just as if they loved you—I am now altogether indifferent as to their feelings for me, as long as their table manners are good, and they make a semblance of adoring me. If one had to depend upon their real disinterested love for their kindness to one, then it would be a different matter, and very distressing, but since they can always be caught by a bauble—you and I are fortunately placed, Nicholas."

We laughed our vile laughs together—it is true—I hate to hear my own laugh. I agree with Chesterfield, who said that no gentleman should make that noise'

As I said before, all sorts of people came to see me, but I seem to be stripping them of externals all the time. What is the wood in them? What is the truth in them? Strip me—if I were not rich what would any one bother with me for? Is anyone worth while underneath?

One or other of the fluffies come almost daily to play bridge with me, and any fellow who is on leave, and the neutrals who have no anxieties, what a crew! It amuses me to "strip" them. The married one, Coralie, has absolutely nothing to charm with if one removes the ambience of success, the entourage of beautiful things, the manicurist and the complexion special ist, the Rebous hats and the Chanel clothes She would be a plain little creature, with not too fine ankles—but that self-confidence which material possessions bring, casts a spell over people. Coralie is attractive, Odette, the widow, is beautiful She has the brain of a turkey, but she, too, is exquisitely dressed and surrounded with everything to enhance her loveliness, and the serenity of success has given her magnetism She announces platitudes as discoveries, she sparkles, and is so ravishing that one finds her trash wit. She thinks she is witty, and you begin to believe it!

Odette can be best stripped people could like her but for her looks. Alice, the divorcee, appeals to one—She is gentle and feminine and clinging—she is the cruellest and most merciless of the three. Maurice tells me, and the most difficult to analyse But most of one's friends would find it hard to stand the test of denudi e them of their worldly possessions it is not only the fluffies who would come out of not much valie

Oh! the long long days—and the ugly nights!

One does not sleep very well now, the noise of "Bertha" from 6 A. M and the raids at night!—but I believe I grow to like the raids—and last night we had a marvelous experience I had been persuaded by Maurice to have quite a large dinner party, Madame de Cherie, who is really an amusing personality, courageous and agreeable, and Daisy Ryven, and the fluffies, and four or five men We were sitting smoking afterwards, listening to de Vole playing, he is a great musician. People's fears are lulled, they have returned to Paris Numbers of men are being killed—"The English in hospital what will you" the fluffies said "they had no business to make that break with the Fifth Army" Oh! No! and, after all, the country is too dull—and we have all our hopes in store of petrol If we must fly at the last moment, why on earth not go to the theatre and try to pass the time

De Vole was playing "Madame Butterfly"—when the sirens went for a raid—and almost immediately the guns began—and bombs crashed. One very seldom sees real fear on people's faces now they are accustomed to the noise Without asking any of us de Vole started Chopin's Funeral March It was a very wonderful moment, the explosions and the guns mingling with the splendid chorus. We sat breathless—a spell seemed to be upon us all—We listened feverishly. De Vole's face was transfigured What did he see in the dim light?—He played and played. And the whole tragedy of war—and the futility of earthly interests—the glory, the splendor and the agony seemed to be brought home to us. From this as the noise without became less loud, he glided into Schubert, and so at last ceased when the "all clear" commenced to rend the air No one had spoken a word and then Daisy Ryven laughed—A queer little awed laugh. She was the only Englishwoman there

"We are keyed up," she said

And when they had all gone I opened my window wide and breathed in the black dark night. Oh! God—what a rotter I am.

Friday—Maurice has a new suggestion he says that I should write a book—he knows I am become inappreciable, and he thinks if he flatters me enough I'll swallow the bait, and so he kept quiet and let me ben so much—A novel!—A study of the causes of altruism? What! I feel —yes, I feel a spark of interest. If it could take me out of myself—I shall consult the Duchesse. I will tell Burton to telephone and find out if I can see her this afternoon She sometimes takes half an hour off between four and five to attend to her family

Yes—Burton says she will see me and will send me one of her Red Cross cars to fetch me, then I can keep my leg up

CARDINAL AT FUNERAL OF DR. SLATTERY

Prominent churchmen and laity, headed by Cardinal O'Connell, crowded the Church of Our Lady of the Presentation in Brighton today to pay final tribute to Mr. John R. Slattery, superintendent of St. Elizabeth's Hospital.

The funeral mass was celebrated by the Rt. Rev. Mgr. Richard Hamilin, D.D., secretary to the Cardinal and chancellor of the diocese. His Eminence presided and pronounced the absolution.

Assisting in the mass was the Rev. John J. O'Connell of the Gate of Heaven Church, South Boston, as Rev. Walter J. Roche of Newton and the Rev. James J. Fallon, chaplain of St. Elizabeth's Hospital. The eulogy was by the Rev. Charles Cunningham of St. John's Seminary, Brighton.

The honorary pall bearers were members of the staff of St. Elizabeth's. Among the sisters present were Mother Leo of Providence and Mother Rose of St. Elizabeth's of the Franciscan order.

Interment was at Holyhood Cemetery, Brookline, where the Rt. Rev. Mgr. Ambrose C. Roche of Watertown said prayers.

LAW AND ORDER BOYCOTT ON HOTELS

The Law and Order League No. 15 School street, today announces its members would boycott all hotels that discriminate against an American citizen because of his race, color or creed.

"The Law and Order League will support the Jews," reads the circular sent out by the association signed by D. W. Harrington. "Our investigation has shown that there are a great many hotels that discriminate against the Jews. All friends of the League who are helping us to fight the Ku Klux Klan are requested not to patronize hotels conducted on the Klan principles."

MOVIE NEWS and NOTES

RODOLPHO VALENTINO, star of "Blood and Sand," has sprung almost over night, into one of the greatest drawing cards in the motion picture business. He is an Italian, and was educated in his own country alternately for the army and for the navy. He came to this country a few years ago and enjoyed a slight vogue as a society dancer. Then he tried to go into motion pictures and was passed by D. W. Griffith as a type which might be popular.

Griffith, curiously enough, was able to do little with him as an actor and released him. His first chance came in "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," where his work as Julio made him famous overnight. Since that time he has appeared in such Paramount pictures as "Beyond the Rocks," "The Sheik," and "Moran of the Lady Letty." His first picture as a star is "Blood and Sand" and unlike most picture stars he immediately became a box office attraction. His marital adventures have been aired in the newspapers recently.

"PRINCESS" FEEDS DUCKS.

IMAGINE a princess being asked to feed ducks and chickens! Yet his happened to Marion Davies, whose big Cosmopolitan Production, When Knighthood Was in Flower," is now at the Criterion Theatre in New York. Miss Davies assumed her royal raiment for gingham to begin work on her next production "Adam and Eva," in which she plays the part of a country girl. The owner of the farm where the scenes were made in Connecticut went away for the week end and asked the motion picture star to feed his chickens and ducks while he was away. The erstwhile princess obliged.

MAKE ODD REQUEST

MANY and odd are the requests that come to Douglas Fairbanks for autographed photographs, but the one which has just arrived is probably strangest of all. Franklin Wayne Osburn, retired navy lieutenant and now marine superintendent of the Bess Shipping Company of New York, wrote to Doug as follows: "We have a vessel named 'Robin Hood,' and as I have noticed that you have recently completed a picture of 'Robin Hood,' it occurred to me that you might be willing to send us an autographed picture of yourself in the character of 'Robin Hood,' which we would frame and hang in the dining saloon of the steamer 'Robin Hood.' So far as I know we have the only vessel afloat by this name."

BATHE IN SULPHUR POOL.

TAKING a plunge in a warm sulphur pool was a daily occurrence with the members of "The Valley of Silent Men," a new Cosmopolitan production which was filmed in the heart of the Canadian Rockies. The temperature registered forty below zero, but the boys would slide down the side of Mount Sulphur and plunge in the hot sulphur pool below. Fifteen thousand barrels of warm water flows in and out of the pond every hour. It has a temperature of ninety-two degrees.

WHILE only an incident in Jack Boyle's thrilling story of international intrigue, Cosmopolitan Productions achieves a striking symbolic scene in "The Face in the Fog," now being filmed under the direction of Alan Crosland. Joseph Urban designed the palace setting for the prologue, a decorative feature of which is a reproduction of the Russian imperial coat of arms in mosaic upon the floor of the great hall. The jeweled tooth wrecks this sumptuous setting, and as a final "flash" the murdered Grand Duke is seen stretched out on this coat of arms. The whole history of the Red uprising is sketched in this one scene.

TWILIGHTERS IN SECOND WORLD'S SERIES GAME AT LYNN

CORNETS VS. CANTABS AT LITTLE RIVER

Walter Lota

The Twilight League's little World's Series will continue tonight, and it looks as though all roads will lead to Little River Playgrounds, Lynn, when the North Cambridge Knights of Columbus tackle the Cornet Stars in the second battle for the flag.

Manager Dan Leahy of the Cantabs is running around with a smile that won't come off and figures out that half the battle is won, as he has taken the first baseball tussle of the series. The fans in the Shoe City are sure that tonight's battle will be as good as the first, which was witnessed by 10,000

Although the All-Stars suffered defeat, 5 to 2, in a game filled with thrills, they hope to snatch tonight's game and get back into the running

Joe passes a barrel of stuff, as one of the Lynn players says.

The game will start at 5:15 and all folks wishing to attend must get off a few minutes earlier and hustle to the ball orchard. It is expected that 15,000 fans will gather on the Little River playground.

PRINCETON DECLARES TREAT ELIGIBLE

Princeton, Sept. 13.—"Herbert Treat was never declared ineligible" is the statement attributed to Dean Howard McClenahan of Princeton, concerning the eligibility of certain players.

It was at the suggestion of Dean McClenahan that action was taken against five Tiger athletes last April. This information about Treat has not been the light until this time, for it was expected that the youngster here would be struck from the athletic roster at Princeton.

Treat, who is a sophomore and eligible to play his first year of varsity football for the Orange and Black, was at the early part of last collegiate year registered at Boston College.

Dean McClenahan also said: "Ralph Gilroy of Worcester is in good standing at Princeton but will not be eligible to play football this Fall." Two weeks ago Gilroy, who was considered one of the year's best backfield men, received a letter from Coach Bill Roper outlining him to return for next

This threw consternation into many camps especially that part of it was while playing against Harvard that Gilroy received a forward pass from Lourie and ran more than yards for the touchdown that defeated Harvard.

Recently the news arrived that Gilroy was not accused of professionalism but had been declared ineligible because he has not reported his source of income.

Tom McNamara of Roxbury, who was elected captain of the baseball team for last season, was declared out at the time of the general hazing up and is playing professional football

Treat is the only one of the five in question who will be seen Princeton lines this Fall.

This was the sixty-ninth game this season for North Cambridge. They have won 50, lost 15 and tied 5.

Early comers to the field saw the unusual sight of football and baseball teams working out at the same time. Up on the diamond [illegible] were having practice. Down at the other end of the field the Cambridge Latin School football team was having a workout under the direction of Coach Leander McDonald and his assistant, [illegible].

Manager Dan Leahy came very near breaking up the closing jog around the field which Coach McDonald always gives his football squad each night. Dan busted a mean liner into the squad as they came along. The boys separated a bit, but kept right on.

King Bailer of the St. Andrews team, a pitcher who has always [illegible] the North Cambridge batters guessing, sat with the North Cambridge fans and rooted for Dan Leahy's crew.

Jay O'Connor, the North Cambridge first sacker, came very near [illegible] into the shelter building in the sixth while chasing a foul fly [illegible] Cutler's bat. Cutler then put up another foul fly and Jay smothered [illegible].

Wild Bill Cleary, the North Cambridge right fielder, known in the Twilight League as the "Boy with the Remington Arm," was there with the rifle perching as usual. Bill cut Mal Merritt off at second when the [illegible] Dartmouth catcher tried to stretch a single into a double. On another occasion, Bill captured a long fly and then turned loose the old arm and threw the ball from right field to the fence in front of the left field grand stand.

GRAPPLERS GET GOING ON THE GRAND OPERA HOUSE MAT

GREEK CHAMPION IN FEATURE BOUT

By JACK CONWAY.

Boston's wrestling season opens tonight at the Grand Opera House when the Old Howard management stages a card of action. It will be the first opportunity mat devotees have had to see the grapplers in action since June. Consequently a large outpouring of fans is expected. The season which opens tonight will bring all of the leading wrestlers to this city. Strangler Lewis, world's champion, will naturally engage in several bouts here.

Matchmaker Paul Bowser has arranged a bang-up offering for the opening at the Grand Opera House. The feature bout will find George Kotsomaros, Greek champion, opposing Cyclone Ross of New York.

Strangler Lewis Kotsomaros arrived here Wednesday and immediately went to a local gym where he engaged in a stiff workout. He is a big, powerful fellow and expects to come through with a victory.

The Greek champion will meet plenty of opposition when he takes on Ross. The latter is known as the German Tiger. He is wrestling instructor at Bothner's School in New York and is rather confident he will upset the Greek warrior.

Frank Lurich to Try for New Fame

Frank Lurich, Lithuanian heavyweight, will have John Carlson, Danish strong man as an opponent in another bout. Louis Andress, crack Greek, will try conclusions with Ed Wills of Worcester. Sam Smith, as usual, will referee.

The show will start at 8.30, which will give out-of-town fans an opportunity to see all of the bouts.

Billy Henderson predicts wonderful things for Lee Anderson, colored light heavyweight, who made such a great fight against Kid Norfolk at the Boston Arena.

"Anderson would be able to knock out Harry Greb," said Henderson. "I consider Lee one of the fastest big fellows I have ever seen in action. I have received offers for his services from all parts of the country since his sensational quarrel with Norfolk.

"The Anderson who battled Norfolk took Boston by storm and yet he didn't do the fighting he is capable of doing. Lee was stricken by a fever prior to coming East. This caused him to drop from 185 to 170 pounds. While training for Norfolk, Anderson built up until he weighed 175 pounds. In a couple of weeks he will be back at 185 pounds. The change in climate also hampered Anderson slightly.

Henderson Impressed by Work of Anderson

"New York wants to stage a Norfolk-Anderson match, but I have not given my answer as I want Lee to get back around 185 pounds before he resumes fighting. Lee's terrific punching ability makes him one of the most dangerous men in the ring. Of course we would like to get a Greb match more than anything else, but while Pittsburgh Harry is trying to get up a little courage Lee will keep active in the ring.

Naturally Lee and myself were very much pleased by the way the fans enthused over the quarrel at the Arena."

Reed Wants Another Bout With Bogash

Messrs. Conley and Carter write as follows:

"A bowl has developed among the friends of Pal Reed, and they say that the decision should have been awarded to Pal last Friday in his bout with Louis Bogash. Reed and his friends say that Pal had the better of six rounds out of the ten, three going to Bogash, and one even, and Pal was the aggressor all the time. Bogash also did a lot of tin canning and they think that kind of work should not win the award.

"Reed's friends have got together and will back Pal to beat Bogash in a return bout, and Reed says that he does not want a penny if he does not beat Bogash in the next bout. Bogash made the assertion after the bout that he would not box Pal again, but as the awards are even, both boys having won over the other a rubber battle ought to be in order.

"If Bogash will not accept this challenge, Reed will box any middleweight in the world, as he thinks with a little more training he can do better, as he was out of active boxing for four months when he took on Bogash."

4 Rounds of Boxing for Arena A. C. Fans

Four ten-round bouts will make up the regular weekly program of the Arena A. C. at the Arena next Monday night.

On the card will be two of the members of the "Fighting Shade" family, Billy, the light-heavyweight, and George, the middleweight.

The former will oppose Jack McClellan, Somerville, and the latter Harry Elva, West End.

Alex Trembitas, the Coast welterweight, will be introduced with Steve Latzo, the fighting miner from Hazleton, Pa.

In the curtain raiser Billy Shyne, Quincy, will appear against his old rival, Freddie Warren of South Boston.

BILLY CANTY GOES OVER THE TOP

William A. Canty

It will be Representative William A. Canty once more when Miss 1923 glides into the picture. For "Billy" swept to a decisive victory in the Democratic primaries in Ward 15, Roxbury. He topped the ticket with a margin of some 600 votes on the second man. It was the greatest vote ever given to a candidate for the House in the Roxbury District.

Billy is a member of the Boston American's sporting staff, which is another reason why he is with the winners. He is twenty-eight years old yesterday and considered his nomination to the House a fitting birthday present.

Incidentally Billy is a bachelor. Don't crowd girls.

B. C. GETS STAR IN CRONIN

A new star who promises to shine brilliantly in the Boston College backfield this fall is "Tupper" Cronin, former Cambridge Latin boy. Cronin has made an enviable reputation in high school circles, having been chosen as an scholastic player in every sport Cronin had numerous offers to matriculate elsewhere, but chose B. C. Under Coach Frank Cavanaugh's guidance, Cronin should develop into one of the best backfield men in the East. He will have to work with a batch of veteran backfield men, seasoned players who know the game, and this fact should force him to show his best form.

BUFF MEETS VILLA IN TITLE BATTLE

New York, Sept. 14.—Johnny Buff, American flyweight boxing champion, and Pancho Villa, Filipino title-holder, were scheduled for a 15 round contest tonight at Ebbets Field.

It will mark Buff's first appearance in the ring since he lost the bantamweight championship to Joe Lynch several weeks ago. He declared he had completely recovered from illness which has prevented him from boxing since then.

TWIRLED NO-HIT GAME, BUT HIS TEAM LOST

That it is possible to pitch a no-hit game and yet lose it is now believed in by Atwater, pitcher for the Foster Machine and Moose teams. Atwater was recently pitching for the Chesterfield team against Huntington and in the ninth inning his team was ahead, 2-0. In the ninth, however, his mates failed him and two hit batsmen, coupled with errors, was enough to give the Huntington team the lead, although they secured nary a hit.

THOMPSON SAYS WILLS RAN AWAY

Jack Thompson, the colored giant who will meet Champion Jack Dempsey in Mechanics Building, tomorrow night, arrived in town last evening and asserted that Harry Wills ran out of a fight with him that was scheduled to take place in Dyckman's Oval, July 31. Thompson says that Wills refused to fight unless Tod Jackson was substituted.

Jack Thompson.

Actual distance Thompson would show that even Dempsey will have trouble knocking him down. Thompson is just a trifle over six feet in his stocking feet and says that he weighs 205 pounds. In his street clothes he looks massive. He is a thorn in the side of Harry Wills. They battled ten times but Wills couldn't even make a dent in him.

It should give the fans a good line on Tiger Jack. The tiger spirit in Dempsey is very strong and as a result he has battered up so many sparring partners that he has trouble in finding new ones. Thompson seems to stand up better than any man that Dempsey has engaged.

There will be a night of action as there will also be four ten round bouts to decision.

MLLE. LENGLEN TO QUIT TENNIS

Le Touquet, France, Sept. 14—Suzanne Lenglen, holder of the Wimbledon women's singles championship and various other tennis titles of less importance, may never appear in tournament play again. She was forced to default to Mrs. Hannam of England in the international singles championship tournament here, and her father then stated that she would quit the courts unless her health should improve.

Mlle. Lenglen.

Miss Elizabeth Ryan, the California young woman, won the international championship, defeating Mrs. Hannam in the final.

KILBANE CAUSES LAUGH IN PARIS

Paris, Sept. 14.—Paris thanks Johnny Kilbane, featherweight champion of the world, for a glimmer of merriment in these tense times. Johnny's humor was expressed in a demand for a guarantee of $100,000 for a decision fight with Eugene Criqui, the featherweight champion of France, wounded veteran of the French infantry, involving the world title.

Johnny Kilbane

The press ridicules Kilbane's terms, pointing out that $100,000 amounts to 1,300,000 francs, three times as much as the greatest gross gate ever paid for a single fight in France.

FLYING COP WILL BE SEEN SATURDAY

New York, Sept. 14—Bob McAllister, fleetest runner in the New York police department, who made the 100 yard dash in ten seconds at the A. A. U. meet in Newark, N. J., last Saturday, will compete against the best sprinters of the "Finest" at the final police field day at the Jamaica racetrack Saturday afternoon.

PIRATES PURCHASE NEW PITCHING STAR

Pittsburgh, Sept. 14.—The Pittsburgh National League Club today announced the purchase of William Hughes, pitcher, from the Rochester club of the International League. He will report at the training camp next Spring. Hughes has won 19 and lost 16 games this season.

THOMPSON SAYS REPORT DUNDAS SIGNS WITH ABBOTS

By ART CURLY.

Jake Kershaw is reported to have signed Johnny Dundas for the Abbot Worsted soccer team. If this hustling Forge Village manager really has this player's signature on a form, he has annexed a valuable man.

Dundas has been rated one of the fastest forwards in New England. He was at one time attached to the General Electric aggregation, when they were going good, and it was while with this outfit that he surprised Fore River out of the first round of the National Cup, although the game had to be replayed on account of a protest. The replay was won by Fore River.

Johnny Dundas

Some of the local experts are of the opinion that Dundas will displace Billy McMasters at outside left, while others believe he will take the place of Davey Page as a partner to Jimmy Farquhar. That seems the more likely, as Page is signed for Fore River, and Johnny is either a centre or outside right.

Play Rubber Contest

The rubber game between the Lexington and Concord mines of Middlesex County will be staged on Lexington Field next Sunday afternoon.

150 in B. C. High Squad on First Day of Practice

The boys of Boston College High School are out for new honors on the gridiron this season and have started right in with a rush. More than 150 candidates reported to Coach Higgins on the first day out and more are expected at Franklin Field for practice later in the week. The outlook for the coming season was never brighter, according to those in charge of the big squad.

SMITH SURE TO MAKE GOOD

There are two types of soccer players that come to this country from Scotland, England, Wales or other countries across the pond. One is the type that claims to hail from some first division eleven in the old country but when they are given a trial they are only in their own way. The other is the type that usually comes to this country because they have real class and are modest about their football proclivities. Their relatives get them a tryout with a small local team at a

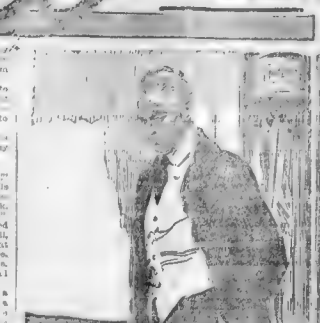
"Mary" ROMANCE OF A BOSTON BUSINESS GIRL

By Elenore Meherin

Start This Story Today

MARY KELLY wins the post of private secretary to HALL DAWSON, a dynamic promoter with offices in Water street. She instinctively fears him. After the conclusion of a big deal he calls her his mascot and gives her a check for $100, which she accepts with misgivings. Reassured by Dawson, however, she plunges into her work, dreaming of the day she will be his partner. Mary goes to see the parade of the returning Yankee Division and meets PAT SULLIVAN, her childhood sweetheart. JACK MAHONEY, a young millionaire, declares his love for her. Pat takes Mary riding and she realizes she loves him only. She receives a letter of proposal from Mahoney and answers it with a refusal. Pat has a row with Dawson.



Dawson paced to and fro

"THE accessory companies will not touch Sullivan's invention. Two of them (he mentioned the one Pat was not working with) stated they had seen your patent, but were not favorably impressed. I have been able to put your proposition over almost entirely because of another enterprise I am not promoting.

"Three men whose names I am not at liberty to mention but whose integrity is above reproach have finally agreed to form a stock company to put the carburetor on the market. You will admit the risk of the venture is considerable. As you are aware, there are a great many carburetors already on the market—and the combinations are not proving a success. Despite your very natural faith in your own patent, the hazard justifies extreme caution.

"Under the circumstances you will probably realize the liberality of this offer. The backers are willing to make you a cash payment of $22,000 and to grant you 5o per cent. of the stock in the company to be formed in return for your patent and all its rights.

"Awaiting an early reply—

Two days later Pat's answer came. Dawson was so furious he came over and shook it in my face.

"Read that, Mary! The damn puppy!"

It was very brief

"Dear Mr. Dawson—I am deeply obliged for your offer in my behalf. I am aware that my carburetor may be worthless to you, but I am banking on its merit and I am determined to win or fail with it. There is certainly something to be said in favor of your proposition and a cash payment of $25,000 if one counts on the carburetor failing. I don't believe I could realize a second cash payment of $22,000 from any one else. I could rent a barn and start manufacturing on my own account, but I don't care for the responsibility. I prefer to allow you to take the control. Yours sincerely—"

"Can you beat that for hell's own luck?"

He took out his handkerchief and mopped his forehead.

"Gawd! Help me up, Mary!" Dawson's eyelids twitched. His voice was [illegible] whisper. "Help me! I'm not sick. Just tired—shock—that's all—"

"Hell of a note" he gasped weakly. "Farley dead! No will, no heirs. We'll own 61 [illegible] money! we're ruined if we lose. Don't let them keep me at home. I'm not sick" His body sagged, dropped forward.

Easterly, the bookkeeper and a chauffeur, finally got him into a taxicab. [illegible] The chauffeur and the office was like a madhouse.

Mrs. Dawson phoned at least five times every morning giving me a hot shot of orders from her husband.

Then Easterly would come for [illegible] dictating letters that were no sooner written than they were countermanded by some new word from Dawson.

I was glad to be busy—to be [illegible] I was [illegible] I [illegible] I [illegible] for me at Allan Bruce's studio.

On the third day, early in the afternoon, a young girl in a plaid sport skirt, high heeled pumps, a scarlet coat and an impudent turban on her red, bleached hair flung open the door of the inner office. She looked like an angry dash of paint.

"Say, what you guys think you're pullin'? I'll let you know I ain't no greenhorn! You and no bunch of lawyers ain't gonna fleece me outta the old man's coin! Put that in your pipe and smoke it!"

She tossed her head, eyeing me defiantly. I felt a scarlet admiration for her hot rush of slang.

"Come in, won't you?" I urged. "What is the name, please?" I said as sweetly as I could

"Aw, don't try to kid me! Suppose you never heard of me before? I'm Lenna Farley. And this guy, Dawson, whoever he is, couldn't wait till he sends lawyers round to get the money that ain't his! Well, he'll never get it. It's mine and I'm gonna hold on to it. I'll [illegible] I'll [illegible] I'll [illegible]

WORLD TRADERS FREE PORT IN HUB URGED

A free port at Boston, where traders from all sections of the world can come and buy, is suggested to Mayor Curley by J. S. Hanly, buyer for the rug department of C. F. Hovey's

Mr. Hanley has just returned from Turkey and European countries. "In Turkey, the government has done away with import duties on products which are offered to the world's market from Constantinople. If the goods brought into the government warehouses are disposed of for interior use, a duty is then asked," he said.

WOULD ATTRACT BUYERS.

"I think this plan is in keeping with the program's of Mayor Curley and John F. Fitzgerald, who have been working to boost the port of Boston.

"It would bring from all sections of the world scores of buyers. It would indirectly help the American merchant marine.

"There are plenty of large buildings which the government could place at the disposal of Boston merchants. Bring the goods from all sections of the world and make Boston the market for not only America, but for all Europe, the Orient and all other places.

"The free port of Constantinople has proved the advantages of this system. When I visited that city buyers from the British possessions, the United States and practically every country in the world were present. Business was booming as it never has before in Turkey.

REGAINING PRESTIGE

"Turkey is regaining its prestige in the rug market owing to this fact. Persian products are also offered for sale at the government warehouses in Constantinople."

The Greek troops are practically without clothing in many instances, Mr. Hanley reported. The Turks are advancing rapidly and are nearing the Greek capital.

"In Constantinople, Allied troops are doing patrol duty. Companies of men from England, France, Greece and Turkey walk through the streets side by side. Not even a word is spoken. Despite the fact that they are forced to do the work together the men cannot understand the language of all those on duty."

Mr. Hanley visited practically every large city in Europe and Asia. This is the second trip he has made through the territory during the past six months. He has made large purchases of Turkish and Persian rugs.

FORESTERS URGE UNITED IRELAND

In the closing days of the convention of the National Irish Foresters at the Hotel Westminster, the delegates adopted a resolution in the form of a cable message to the Irish leaders in Ireland urging them to "stand together and cease their disagreements that Ireland's cause might prevail."

The delegates also passed resolutions urging that efforts be made in all the States of the Union for the enforcement of child labor laws.

A block of four stores, masonry, stone and brick construction, 87x45 feet, has just been completed at Nos. 1031A to 1033A Dorchester avenue. The interior is finished with metal ceilings and lighting, equipped with electric lights and furnaces heated. As this lot of land contains 5,200 square feet, the space unoccupied by the stores is being utilized for the construction of a three-family frame structure, fronting on No. 42 Victoria street. This apartment is to have all modern improvements, including gas, electricity, steam heat, open plumbing, etc.

Plans have also been prepared by Mr. Hardy for two modern two-family frame houses to be erected at Nos. 74-78 Clayhourne street, Dorchester. Each house will contain six and seven room flats, and will embody all the latest features, including sun parlors, steam heat, electric lights, beamed ceilings in dining and living rooms, open wood finish and oak floors. The cost will be around $18,000 and work on them is expected to start at once.

STRAW VOTE HIT MARK NEARLY 100 P.C. TRUE

By A. STRAW VOTE.

Now that the fuss is over, let's talk about ourselves.

Did we stand the test? We'll tell the pole we did.

Berlonging, as the Boston American Straw Vote, taken amid all the circumstances peculiar to the election, hit about the highest record of any pre-primary ballot ever taken in this broad country of ours.

You will recall the repeated warnings that a straw vote vole ever undertaken was fraught with danger? That we said we would do our best to escape the whirlpools? That we would first analyze all the risks for the sake of giving you a pre-primary expression that might be helpful in enabling you to gauge the public sentiment?

NEARLY 100 PER CENT.

Well, the old straw came through pretty close to 100 per cent.

To begin, the straw vote showed John F. Fitzgerald would capture the Democratic nomination for governor easily. It showed that he would poll slightly in excess of the grand total of his three distinguished competitors. It showed another fact surprising to the politicians—that Mayor Peter F. Sullivan, suffering the handicap of a delayed start, would run into second place.

Straw—Fitzgerald, Sullivan, Foss, Ely.

Primary—Fitzgerald, Sullivan, Ely, Foss.

Mr. Fitzgerald's primary vote was just short of 5,000 in excess of the combined votes of the other three. Mr. Ely's running into third place ahead of Mr. Foss was accounted for by the fact that the straw did not touch the hill towns of western Massachusetts, a fact that was frequently stated in every day's analysis of the straw vote.

PREDICTED FELLETIER.

The straw vote told that Mr. Pelletier would sweep the city to the tune of nearly 4,000 votes that were responsible for his removal from office. They scratched their heads solemnly and said, "It can't be true." But it was. Mr. Pelletier's total vote was 43,295, just 500 votes ahead of the combined vote of the six other contestants.

The straw fixed them up in this order: Pelletier, O'Brien, Foley, Ford, Walsh, Donaghue and Patron. They finished in this order in the actual voting:

Pelletier, O'Brien, Foley, Ford, Donaghue, Walsh and Patron.

In the Republican primaries for Attorney General, the straw vote again stood the test. You will recall the announcement which greeted the straw vote announcement that Harold D. Wilson was the real opponent of Hon. Joseph Benton, backed by all the regulars of the G. O. P.

The straw vote said they would finish in this order:

Benton, Wilson, Donnell, Cavanagh, Bodfish and Drury.

The straw vote's estimate verified the straw vote prediction that Mr. Wilson would run second to Mr. Benton.

They finished in this order:

Benton, Wilson, Donnell, Cavanagh, Drury and Bodfish.

COX VICTORY INSTINCT.

Straw vote's victory for Governor Cox over Attorney-General Allen was told so distinctly that it is unnecessary here to analyze it. Remember the straw prediction that Senator Lodge would run three to one ahead of Mr. Walker.

The straw vote was: Lodge, 209,577; Walker, 68,437.

Mr. O'Brien captured the Republican nomination for District Attorney by the margin of his straw vote, and Mr. Gleag ran last, fulfilling the straw prediction of the old straw ballot.

The one upset was the Gastonian outcome. But how much of an upset was it? Could you really scald on that account? You remember Mr. Whalen led twice, Mr. Gastonian twice, they ran even twice, and, finally, the Whipple straw lead was by "a very narrow margin."

Straw vote's remarkable victory was YOUR victory.

Gaston Deserves Support

Senator Lodge Represents the Dark Forces of Invisible Government Which Are Sapping Pillars of the Republic

Mr. William A. Gaston, Democratic nominee for Senator, calls for co-operation from the Democrats and those who are opposed to the re-election of Senator Lodge. We hope that he gets it.

The Boston American will do all it can to help him. It will present to its readers the case against Senator Lodge. We think that the evidence against his worthiness to be re-elected will be decisive. To those who want a man to represent the interests of the great majority, we believe we can show that Mr. Lodge does only not represent the interests of the great majority, but that he represents the dark forces, which constitute our invisible government and which are sapping the pillars on which our democratic republic rests.

Walker to Lodge

Interesting and Dignified Communications Written the Senator After the Primaries

We publish below two letters from Mr. Joseph Walker, candidate against Mr. Lodge for the Republican nomination for Senator. They are interesting, dignified, manly communications, and they do the temper, principles and character of Mr. Walker credit:

To My Friends and Supporters:

I take this occasion to thank all my friends for their cordial and enthusiastic support. They know that I am fighting their battle. I have made the best fight I could for the principles and policies in which we all believe.

I have not been able to get the great issues involved before all the voters. It is therefore clear that I have not been defeated on such issues. I shall continue the fight for liberal ideals and policies and for a new leadership to represent them.

This is but the opening gun of a still greater battle. Let us all stand together as liberals and progressives in the future and until the fight is ultimately won.

(Signed) JOSEPH WALKER.

Hon. Henry Cabot Lodge,
Nahant, Mass.

Dear Mr. Lodge:

Instead of sending to you at this time the customary perfunctory congratulations upon your victory, I prefer to write you frankly.

Please believe me when I say that I have not now and never have had the slightest personal feeling against you. I do not covet your seat in the United States Senate. I have opposed you because you have opposed and continue to oppose measures and policies, both domestic and foreign, in which I believe and to which I am devoted.

I cannot, therefore, honestly congratulate you upon your victory, because I feel that such victory tends to check a movement for liberal ideals and policies and for a new leadership which truly represents them. This movement must go on in the interests of the Commonwealth and of the nation. I shall devote myself to it in the future as in the past. I have made this plain in a statement to my friends issued this evening.

Please accept my best wishes for your continued health and strength.

Sincerely yours,
(Signed) JOSEPH WALKER.

If the republic prospers, and it can only prosper by becoming more and more democratic, for nothing that is human can stand still, men and women of the future, when they come upon these two letters of Mr. Walker's, will wonder how it was possible that a majority of the Republicans in the Republican primaries did not see the things as Mr. Walker saw them.

Hard Coal Conspiracy

Mines, Dominated by the Railroads, Have Pushed Up Price to Point of Extortion

Good for Mr. James J. Storrow. We are glad to hear his voice raised in warning against the conspiracy to increase the price of hard coal.

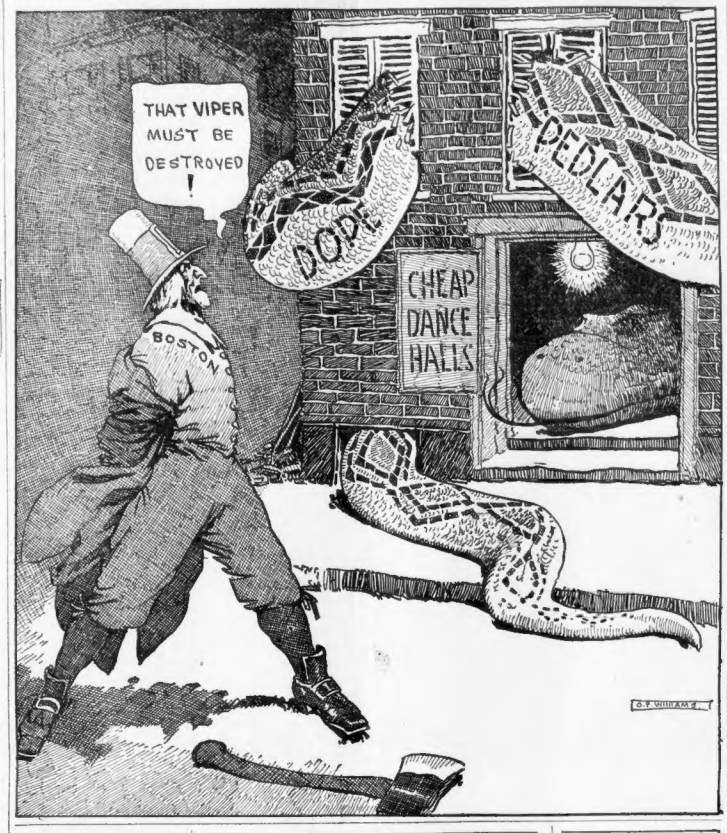
Our hard coal has already reached a point where it is almost prohibitive to the ordinary man. These hard coal mines, dominated by the railroads, contrary not only to the law, but the Constitution of Pennsylvania, which they have defied for years, have pushed up the price of coal until it has reached the point of extortion. There is a considerable ground for belief that the strike was part of a conspiracy to hold up the hard coal prices and to work off on householders coal that has lain on the slag heap and unfit for use for scores of years; coal that is three-quarters stone, coal that destroys your furnace and gives you no heat.

We were not a bit impressed by the circular letter from the mine owners asking us if we approved of peace with the miners, knowing that it means to keep up the price of coal. We approve of peace with the miners, of course, but we do not know that it necessarily means the keeping up of the price of coal. We do not believe that the wages which the miners ask or the wages which the miners are going to get justify even the present price of coal, to say nothing of the price that Mr. Storrow declares there is danger of our being charged.

Still less do we believe that the coal strike should be used to work off blackened stone on us at $15, $16, $17 and $18 a ton.

Does any human being believe that if we had a majority in our Senate like Walsh and La Follette this situation could long exist?

The Den



Some People Contrary

By Winifred Black

"EDGEWAYS." What a queer, old-fashioned word. And yet it does mean such a lot.

That's the way Jane seems to feel—"edgeways."

When Jane's in New York she's always talking about California.

Nothing like the climate of California. Nothing like the scenery. Nothing like the flowers. Nothing like the people. Nothing like the fun—and all the New Yorkers hate to see her coming.

It does bore them so to hear Jane rave about California.

But when Jane is in California she talks about New York. Nothing like little old Broadway. No street to compare with Fifth avenue. When you leave New York you are camping out. Why, to hear Jane there isn't a thing worth living for if you can't roost somewhere within sound of the elevated or the subway—that's when she is in California.

When Jane is with religious people she's an agnostic. How she does hate the church—any church—anything about it. A church spire in the distance will start her going. And she will talk about bigotry and superstition, and intolerance and narrow-mindedness until you fairly expect to see her hurl herself from the automobile and throw a bomb into the choir, or set fire to the first pew she can reach.

But set Jane down at a dinner with a lot of radicals, and dear me, how conservative she does become.

"After all, we must have ideals," says Jane. "And religion is the greatest ideal of all. What would life be without prayer, and how can one exist without faith?"

And all the radicals raise their eyebrows and look at each other and are even willing to stop arguing while Jane's there. And when you can get a radical to stop arguing—

What on earth is the matter with Jane?

She's always edgeways—always on the other side—always contrary.

I think she is suffering from a bad case of what the psychologists would call "inverted ego."

Could she have been a badly treated stepchild, do you suppose? Or was she brought up by a nagging aunt or a tyrannical uncle?

Prejudice a Crime

Editor Boston American:

Prejudice ought to be classed as a crime in this country and prohibited by law. Very few understand the real cause of the recent attacks on certain religions. The whole affair is purely a political intrigue to weaken candidates in polling votes. Whether English, Irish or Jews, everyone gets his share of abuse by some ignorant self-styled American.

Editor Boston American:

Here is the Irish question in a nutshell. The south wants freedom from England, but the world knows she would be under the rule of the Pope. The north prefers English rule to the Pope's rule. The Irish can slander and lie all they wish, but I wonder whether the world isn't really laughing at them. I think she has treated and is treating the Irish very gently, otherwise "God help Ireland."

Use American Ships

Editor Boston American:

Now is the time for Tom, Sullivan and the other two great American swimmers, as well as a great many more noted Americans abroad, to show their Americanism by booking passage back home on an American ship. There is only one reason why they like foreign ships. They like to be made a lot of, like to be paged over the ship, the stewards and waiters to bow down to them, etc.

Service on American ships is every bit as efficient, while not being mushy, as on British passenger ships. We have large, wonderful passenger ships plowing over the whole world. Patronize them and help them to the front.

Caused by Envy

Editor Boston American:

In reply to letter by Fanny E. Warden of Waltham criticizing Jewish table manners—I notice that she particularly mentions their being "loaded with diamonds and expensive clothing." I think that the envy that is inherent in the average woman when seeing such things had more to do with her inability to relish her food than their "vulgar manners while eating." Most of the vulgar Jew-baiting is caused by flabby failures envying Jewish success achieved through heroic struggles.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON MOON'S SHADOWS

By Garrett P. Serviss

"Your explanation of natural phenomena is clearly understood and greatly appreciated. Now, will you give us a lesson on the reason of the different shapes presented by the moon? I affirm that the darkened part of the moon is virtually its own shadow, but a friend of mine insists that it is the moon passing through the outer edge of the earth's shadow that makes these various forms from crescent to full.—R. B., Chicago."

THE varying shapes assumed by the moon in the course of the illuminated part of every lunation, or lunar month, are called phases; and their differences are due to changes in the relative positions of sun, earth and moon. The moon has no visible light of its own, and we see it only because it reflects to us the sunlight that falls upon its surface.

The plane in which the moon revolves around the earth is very nearly the same as the plane in which the earth and the moon together revolve around the sun. But the distance to the sun is almost 400 times the distance to the moon, so that the moon in going around the earth never passes on the other side of the sun from the earth, but goes between them when it is in that part of its orbit that lies in the direction of the sun.

Now, keep these facts in mind while recalling what was above stated about the moon being visible to us only through the reflection of sunlight from its surface. That being the case, of course we can only see the moon when sunlight falls upon that part of it that is presented at the same time toward the earth. Consider the moon when it is passing nearly between the sun and the earth. Can we see it then? Of course not, because at such times the side of the moon that is reached by the sunlight is just the side that is turned away from the earth. It is true that if, as periodically happens, the moon passes exactly between the earth and the sun, it can be seen as a black circle covering the sun, but that only proves what we have just said, viz., that when the moon is between the earth and the sun, we cannot see it, in the ordinary sense.

Next, consider the moon as it passes out of the line with the sun, going eastward from the sun as viewed from the earth. When it has got an appreciable angular distance from the sun we begin to see it in the western sky as a bright crescent. That crescent is formed by a portion of the spherical surface of the moon, which is now in such a position that it is presented toward the sun and the earth at the same moment, and being illuminated by sunlight, becomes invisible.

The moon continues to move away easterly from the sun, and when it reaches the southern quarter of the sky, and is so placed that its direction from the earth is at a right angle to the sun's direction, we see it as a half moon, for now, manifestly, one half of the side of the moon that is presented toward the sun is at the same time presented toward the earth.

The other half of the moon, the hemisphere turned away from the sun, is not lighted and consequently though presented toward the earth, is invisible. That part of the moon, as you correctly remark, may be said to lie in the moon's own shadow, just as the night side of the earth, whatever that side may be at any particular time, is buried in the earth's own shadow, so we may call night the shadow of the earth.

Medbury Says—

Every Man Wants to Get to the Top Without Working, But We Can't All Marry the Owner's Daughter

Vacation time is over and most of the clerks and stenographers have returned from their two weeks of idleness in the country and will spend the rest of the year loafing at the office.

But you've got to be careful; the average boss will fire you now-adays on the slightest provocation. One manager canned three clerks last week for doing nothing.

Every man wants to get to the top without working, but we can't all marry the owner's daughter.

If you get in and work day and night your employer is bound to reward you, yes, with more work.

A lot of office managers are so cheap they won't buy a clock, they tell the time by the sun. One stenographer used to pull the shade down in the middle of the afternoon and the whole office force was quitting at three o'clock.

Too many employees make it a habit of sleeping at the office. Thick carpets and noiseless typewriters are a great help to them.

A noiseless typewriter never keeps anybody awake except the girl who's operating it.

The average business man's idea of a noiseless typewriter is one who doesn't chew gum or gab.

Some offices are so noisy the boss never opens the windows. He doesn't want to disturb the people on the street.

Office help is a great source of worry to every employer. If he has a homely stenographer she spends all of her time powdering and painting, trying to make herself look pretty.

If he employs a beautiful girl who doesn't have to powder and paint she spends all of her time flirting.

If she doesn't flirt she runs away and gets married. One employer said he had a stenographer who came and got married four times last year.

She couldn't keep her mind on her work and giggling from her four marriages she couldn't keep her mind on her husband's either.

The only way he could stop her from marrying every man she saw was to give her a desk that was away from the window.

She never had anything to do with the men in the office because they were all single.

She figured that if a man was worth having he would be married.

Government statistics say that there are thousands of people in the United States who are employed, but this doesn't include the stenographers and clerks in the hundreds of offices all over the country.

Boston Men Appeal Sentence When Arraigned on Charges Made by Young Woman

A woman's shrieks in the Brighton Hill district of Newton today drew Patrolman Marshal and McDonagh to the scene.

They found an automobile containing four men and a young woman, the shrieks coming from the latter.

She told the officers she knew one of the men who had invited her to go riding. She said the others had agreed she should be taken to her home in Everett. They refused to keep their agreement, however, and when the young woman attempted to leave the car, prevented her from doing so.

The four men were arrested and taken to the Newton police station where they were booked as Everett Texter, twenty-nine years old, of No. 41 Bowdoin street; Charles Grovo, thirty-five years old, teamster, of No. 114 Merrimac street; Rocco Paulldino, eighteen years old, clerk, of No. 220 Hanover street, and Samuel Putcio, thirty-two years old, a chauffeur, of No. 1 Keith alley, all of Boston.

The girl, said to be Miss Esther Mason of Everett, was not arrested and appeared in Newton Court against the men. Texter was fined $15 for having no automobile registration, $25 for having no license, and $10 for rude and disorderly conduct. Grovo was fined $10 for rude and disorderly conduct, as were the other two men. All appealed.

The young woman made no charge against the men other than that they prevented her from leaving the automobile.

Gertrude Vanderbilt, Stage Star, Named in Dillon Failure

GERTRUDE VANDERBILT

New York, Sept. 14.—Gertrude Vanderbilt, theatrical star, received $4,000 in checks drawn by Dillon & Co. shortly before this firm's failure, testimony presented yesterday at the investigation being conducted by Trustee Keyes Winter brought out.

Henry G. Rotger of the Hudson Trust Company, Miss Vanderbilt's bankers, produced two deposit slips crediting this total to the actress' account.

Transcripts of Miss Vanderbilt's account for June and July were identified by Mr. Rotger and the deposits of $2,000 and $1,000 were indicated by him.

Miss Vanderbilt, sought backstage at the Belasco Theatre, refused to talk, sending word to "see my lawyer, William J. Fallon."

Trustee Winter took the stand yesterday and testified that Randolph M. Newman, lawyer, who previously admitted the receipt of $250 from Dillon & Co., had offered him money if he would conduct the bankruptcy investigation.

Newman, jaunty and be-flowered, next took the stand and denied having at any time offered Winter money. He admitted advising against publicity because, he testified, "I thought it would not help the creditors."

The investigation will be continued on September 26.

MUST GIVE HOME TO CHILDREN

Sad Case of Neglect Is Bared as Father Faces Court in Chelsea

An unusual marital situation in which six children are the principal sufferers was revealed in Chelsea Court today when Herbert Baker of Chelsea was arraigned on the charge of non-support of his wife and children.

Baker was found guilty and ordered to provide a home for the children as soon as possible.

Four of the children are now in the Home for Destitute Catholic Children and two are in the Boston City Hospital, where they were sent suffering from malnutrition and other ailments.

According to the story told today, Baker left his wife and children three months ago and went to Camp Devens with the National Guard, of which he is a member. His wife then shipped the children down to the home of relatives at Plymouth. After sending the children away she is said to have gone to Maine.

FOUND IN STATION.

The relatives did not approve of having the children sent to them, so shipped them right back on the train. The police found the six youngsters wandering about the North Station with no place to go and no one to care for them.

An aunt of the children, Mrs. Thomas Stevens, of No. 49 Pine street, Chelsea, took the children into her home and kept them for a time. The expense was heavy, she said, and when four of them were taken ill she sent them to the hospital.

The other two were sent to the Home for Destitute Catholic Children. All four of the children sent to the hospital were suffering from malnutrition, it is alleged, and one of them had pneumonia and another diphtheria as well.

POLICE MADE COMPLAINT.

Two of the children have since been discharged from the hospital and are now at the Catholic home with the others. The two of the children are still at the hospital, but are reported as getting better.

The complaint against Baker was brought by the police.

The children are: Loretta, 2; Lillian, 3; Clarence, 5; Esther, 8; Herbert, 11, and Myrtle, 13 years old.

James M. Carpenter Wants Last Marriage Annulled on Grounds of Legal Error

James M. Carpenter of Durham street, Back Bay, failing to get a divorce from his fourth wife, Mrs. Eva M. Carpenter, has sought other legal means to sever the ties which bind them.

Carpenter, it became known today, has brought an action for annulment against his wife, on the claim that he was not legally divorced from his second wife, Mrs. Julia M. Helper Carpenter.

The action is expected to revive sensational testimony which figured in previous suits, in which both parties charged infidelity.

Mrs. Carpenter was represented by Arthur K. Reading, recently nominated for district attorney of Suffolk County on the Republican ticket, and Herbert Harris, while Clarence L. Rowley represented Carpenter.

For some reason, which is not clear, Rowley has seen fit to withdraw from the case. He has been supplanted by Attorney Georgs Russ.

In his divorce action, Carpenter, who is a traveling salesman, named Carroll F. Bragg as corespondent. In the East Cambridge Court, while the hearings were in progress, Mrs. Carpenter admitted that Bragg visited her once a week regularly while her husband was away on business trips.

She broke down on the stand when questioned about her daughter, who had not previously been mentioned in the case, and after she recovered from her collapse, no further reference was made to the daughter, whose identity is not known.

Accompanying Carpenter's suit for annulment are particulars concerning his four ventures in matrimony.

DIVORCED BY TWO.

According to his testimony, his first wife was Marie Adams, whom he married in St. Joseph, Mo., sometime in the '90's. He lived with her for five or six months and a year later instituted divorce proceedings. He failed, but she later was able to secure a divorce, allowing her to get it without a contest.

His second wife was Julia Helper of Springfield, Ill. He married her at Fort Worth, Tex., in 1906, he testified, and lived with her but a short time. She secured a divorce from him in Sioux Falls, Ia., on what he characterized as "trumped up charges."

The third marriage was to Ella Mitchell of Dallas, Tex., in 1909.

HERO ON TRIAL FOR KILLING WOMAN

DEFENSE IS SHELL SHOCK

Dr. Herbert Bryson, Noted Surgeon, Charged With Slaying Mate

Huntingdon, Pa., Sept. 14.—Dr. Herbert Bryson, hero of the World War and former prominent Washington physician and surgeon, goes on trial for his life next Monday with one chance of cheating the electric chair.

Shell-shock, growing out of the horrors of the war, will be set up as a defense of capital crime for the first time in the United States.

SHOT AFTER QUARREL.

Dr. Bryson will be charged with the murder of his pretty mate Mrs. Helen Irene Haines, with whom he lived a year in the peacefully remote village of Casanville, in the mountain fastness of Huntingdon.

Mrs. Haines, in an ante-mortem statement, made in the presence of the district attorney and witnesses, declared she quarreled with Dr. Bryson, that he pursued her to the second floor of their home, broke down the door of her room and shot her.

The burden of proof of shell shock rests with the defense. The prosecution is concerned only as to whether Dr. Bryson fired the shot which resulted in his consort's death.

DYING DECLARATION.

Her dying declaration that he did fire the shots is of itself considered sufficient evidence to send the accused man to the chair. She was told before she made the accusing statement that she was dying. She now assumes a dying person, who has been apprised of the nearness of death, would not accuse falsely.

Husband Slain in Gun and Knife Duel With Wife

Chicago, Sept. 14.—A moonshine-mad husband and a terrified wife fought a knife and gun battle today which ended in the killing of the husband.

Lawrence Walsh, thirty-three, a chauffeur, according to the wife's story, stole $12 from her savings and came back demanding more money for whiskey. When she refused the money, Mrs. Walsh said he attacked her with a knife. She fired one shot, which killed him.

HOME BREW KICK DOOMS HOOTCH, DRY MEN SAY

Washington, Sept. 14. — That home brewing, as an indoor sport, is fast dying out, is the opinion of federal prohibition directors and divisional chiefs conferring here with Commissioner Haynes. Poor results after perspiring efforts over odorous concoctions is the reason given.

The "kick" in most instances is due to the off-products of fermentation or ptomaines," declared Director J. E. Russell of Ohio, who told of finding mash containing banana and watermelon rinds, potato parings, and even garbage. "Some of it has kick enough to put the worst turned old claybank army mule to shame," said Director Russell.

Director Russell also told of one still, confiscated by his agents, which contained two inches of filth and cockroach in the bottom and reeked with sickening odors that only strong agents were able to complete the investigation.

"Home brewers have a habit of getting each other's throats," Director John T. Davis of Pennsylvania said. "The usual remark upon the arrest of a home brewer is 'well, I told you got me; you might as well get some others,' and they usually direct the raiders to any of their neighbors whom they think are violating the law. It is one of our most effective weapons in our successful fight against this 'fad.'"

Associate Director L. G. Nutt said he was his opinion that the dying out of this fad was due in a great measure to the fact that careless and inexperienced method caused an epidemic of acute indigestion, attended by many deaths.

HUSBAND SUES FOURTH WIFE

Three months after the marriage she was granted a divorce on charges of drunkenness. Carpenter alleges that these charges were also "trumped up."

Carpenter and his present wife were married at Dallas shortly after the third wife got a divorce. She was a music teacher and a native of Oklahoma. Shortly after their marriage they came to Massachusetts living first in Arlington and later in Somerville. Mrs. Carpenter, in her cross bill, testified that he deserted her in 1917.

A sensational episode of the divorce actions, which were later both dismissed, was the testimony of Miss Harriet ... Varney of Boston, the nurse who was acquitted at Dedham in December, 1917, of the murder of Mrs. Pauline Keyes in Brookline.

FINDS FLAW IN DIVORCE.

Miss Varney, a trained nurse, had been accused of intimate relations with Carpenter by Mrs. Carpenter. She testified that their relations had been purely along business lines, and denied that there was the least impropriety about them.

Last Spring Carpenter became involved in a legal matter that required proof of his divorce from Wife No 3. When he applied for the formal papers, he found there was a flaw, and that he was still legally wedded to the Helper woman.

This is the basis of his annulment action, which is expected to come up before a master within the next two weeks.

William H. Priese, radio engineer, of Belmont, was enjoined today by Judge Sanderson from divulging any of the secrets of radio amplification systems patented by him while in the employ of the Wireless Specialty Apparatus Company, at the request of the company. ARREST MENTAL KISS DOCTOR ONCE MORE

Dr. Louis Mansolilli of No. 81 Beacon street, Chelsea the ardent lover who wrote Mrs. Grace Lewis, comely Chelsea widow begging for a kiss by "mental telegraphy," and who, the widow says, beat her up when she refused to elope, was in the Chelsea Court today, charged with practicing optometry without being registered.

The case was continued for one week. This is the second time the doctor has been in court on the same charge. Some time ago he was found guilty in the Chelsea court and was fined $200. The sentence was suspended.

Dr. Mansolilli broke into the limelight last August when Mrs. Lewis charged that he took her to the Lynn Marshes and beat her with a hammer because she refused to elope with him and go to Italy. Mrs. Lewis had him arrested on a charge of assault and battery.

Dr. Mansolilli is married and has eight children.

Letters which Mrs. Lewis said she received from the doctor in which he asked for kisses by mental telepathy, told of his "crying day and night" for her. They were signed "Sugar."

WELLESLEY WILL ENROLL 1,500

Wellesley's enrollment this year will be about the same as usual, according to a statement by Ellen F. Pendleton, president of the college. There may be a slight decrease as the college is trying to keep the undergraduate enrollment down to the present number, about 1,500.

Entrance by examination only, instead of by certificate, is the chief means of keeping down the enrollment. Last year's graduating class was the last which entered by certificate as well as by examination.

The twelve-apartment faculty house, first of a group of faculty homes to comprise two quadrangles on Washington street, will be used by faculty members this Fall. The faculty-alumnae club house will be ready for occupancy November 10.

The new college greenhouses will also be completed within two weeks, according to the builders. They will be the first of a group of science buildings.

NAME JUDGE IN GAY CHORUS GIRL PARTIES

New York, Sept. 14.—The name of Supreme Court Justice Louis H. Marcus of Buffalo today was drawn into a story of gay drinking parties alleged to have been held in the apartment of L. Lawrence Weber, theatrical and motion picture producer, in a hearing of an application of Weber's former wife for custody of their three and a half-year-old son, L. Lawrence Weber, Jr.

Mrs. Weber's contention was that the conduct in Weber's apartment was prejudicial to the morals of the boy, and testimony was introduced to the effect that on one occasion, "Larry Junior" had been present at a drinking party and, raising a cocktail glass in his chubby fist, had proposed a toast to "the beautiful ladies" present.

Justice Marcus, who is the child's guardian, and who spent several weeks in New York recently presiding at the trial of members of the American Cotton Exchange, was brought into the case in the testimony of Anna Cannon, a negress formerly employed in Weber's suite in the fashionable Wyoming apartment house.

"Did Judge Marcus ever meet girls in the Weber apartment?" an attorney asked the negress.

"Yes, I fixed luncheon for Judge Marcus and a tall, heavy blonde," the witness answered. "There was another little girl who used to come all the time to see him. She was a blonde or red-headed."

"Who were some of the other men who attended those parties?"

The witness gave the names of seven persons of more or less prominence in the theatrical world, and added that there were "a lot of others."

HYDE PARK ASKS 20C FARE RATE CUT

A plea to end the 20-cent fare problem for the residents of Hyde Park and West Roxbury was urged today by Representative Benjamin C. Lane, Senator Henry S. Clark, Representative George A. Lancaster, Representative Charles Shulman, Representative F. W. Kenrick and Raymond P. Delano before the Commission on Public Utilities.

Fred A. Cummings, representing the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Company, in reply declared his company spent $40,000 rebuilding the line on Hyde Park avenue, whereupon the city allowed jitneys to operate to the detriment of the company.

Hardwick, seeking renomination, by one of the largest pluralities ever rolled up. Walker's nomination is equivalent to election in November.

WIDOW TELLS HOW GRIFFITH EXPIRED

By Cosmopolitan News Service.

New York, Sept. 14.—The first letter relating events leading up to and including the death of the late Arthur Griffith, noted Irish leader, was received in this country today from Griffith's widow, by a friend, Mrs. F. Jones of No. 626 Park avenue, Hoboken. The letter:

"My dear—This is the second day I am allowed to sit up. I have been over a week in bed with a heart attack. The muscles are strained. It misses one beat in four. I have a very tired heart and much worn body, the doctor describes it.

"Both the fathers—Mrs. Griffith's brothers—Catholic priests—are here and my sister. Complete rest is what I must have, but I do not know what is to happen yet. My boy had no insurance and could not save. We have been promised some allowance from the government, but it rests with the Dail.

"I was the only one expecting his death, and every day for the past four months I had to watch him fading away, as quiet in death as in life. The poor boy! He was tortured and worried to the grave by one kin and so-called friend, and for his sake I am happy he has escaped from all.

"His poor, tired face will haunt me while I live. We had so little happiness together and he was away so much that the children do not miss him here. When better I'll write. Pray for Arthur and me for strength to face the future for the children's sakes. Love to all."

WILL NOT QUIT RACE, DECLARES PELLETIER

From his Summer home at Hull today, Joseph C. Pelletier, nominated on the Democratic ticket for District Attorney of Suffolk County, gave this statement to the Boston American:

"No possible exigency can arise which would lead to my withdrawing. The people have been too kind to me to prompt me for a moment to consider a withdrawal. On the contrary, I am asking them for increased activity in my behalf.

"The rumors, in my opinion, concerning my withdrawal are part of the propaganda raised by my enemies and opponents. They are absolutely without foundation and are fraudulent. I have never dreamed of such a thing and without my assent any such statement is ridiculous and made to injure me if possible."

MISS PAINTER OUT OF NEW SHOW CAST

New York, Sept. 14.—Miss Eleanor Painter, who was to have opened her theatrical season as leading lady in "The Lady in Ermine," is ill at her home, but although recovering, will not appear in the cast of the play this season, it was stated today. It was explained that the part did not suit her and that it had not been changed to her liking.

BILL HART AND HIS WIFE

Here's Bill Hart and his bride in one of their "closeups" when Cupid was turning the crank in their love reel. Now the "villun" has taken a hand in the proceedings and Bill and his wife have separated. Bill was around to see his new baby, but says that any reconciliation is impossible.

HER SECOND TRIP TO COURT IN RUM RAIDS

Mrs. Mollie Coogan, a widow, of No. 22 Avenue place, Malden, pleaded not guilty before United States Commissioner Hayes to a charge of unlawfully possessing forty-five gallons of alcohol which was seized by Federal officials in a raid at her home Labor Day. A hearing will be held on September 20. Officials allege that the alcohol was found distributed in Mrs. Coogan's bedroom. It was her second appearance on liquor charges, having been convicted of having fifteen gallons in June.

EDNA CUDAHY'S CAFE ROMANCE ENDS IN COURT

Los Angeles, Sept. 14.—Mrs. Edna Cudahy Browne's adventure as waitress and cafe entertainer, after deserting her rose-covered bungalow, has wound up in the divorce courts.

Her husband, Percival Fisher Browne, Pasadena bank teller, has instituted suit for divorce against the late Jack Cudahy's daughter, charging desertion. The date of the alleged desertion is just seven months after the couple eloped from here and were married.

In December, 1920, Browne was sued for $50,000 heart balm by a pretty Pasadena manicurist, Mrs. Divorty, a granddaughter of the multimillionaire meat packer, then went into seclusion.

About a year later she fled from her home and as Edna Curtis, it was said, found employment as a waitress and later as a cafe entertainer, but failed to make good on either job.

BARS MAYFLOWER FROM CUP RACE

The fishing schooner Mayflower, built to take part in the international fishermen's races between American and Canadian fishing vessels, has again been declared ineligible.

The decision of the board of trustees at Halifax was made known today in a lengthy statement given out following the meeting of the board. This is the second time the board has ruled the Mayflower from competition.

The Mayflower has been the storm centre among the American and Canadian fisherfolk ever since she was built to defend the cup won in the first fishermen's race. It was thought that she would be allowed to compete this year as she has been on the fishing banks continuous since she was built.

The Nautch girls of India were the first to shimmie and they chose this sort of a costume for the purpose. When the huge skirt is whirled by the dancer, Miles Marchon, it has a tendency to lift him off his feet, and it required a lot of practice for him to maintain his equilibrium.

NEW HART BABY WON'T UNITE COUPLE

Los Angeles, Sept. 14.—Suit for divorce on the ground of "extreme cruelty" will be instituted at once against William S. Hart, film actor, by Mrs. Winifred Westover Hart, according to an announcement today by Mrs. Hart's attorney.

Los Angeles, Sept. 14.—William S. ("Bill") Hart, motion picture actor, and his wife, Winifred Westover, screen actress, met over the cradle of their first born for the first time in several months.

The meeting occurred at the home of Mrs. Hart's mother in Santa Monica, a suburb where Mrs. Hart went after she and her husband had separated and where the child, a boy, was born, a week ago.

FIRST MEETING.

It was Hart's first view of his son, who has been named William S. Hart, Jr. Hart went to his wife's residence and asked to see the child. As the baby could not be taken outside the house, Hart was invited inside.

"I tell you, honestly, I believe that little fellow was glad to see me," said Hart later. "He really acted like it. He laughed and giggled. We had a great time together."

Asked if the meeting might lead to a reconciliation, Hart shook his head.

"That's impossible," he said.

The Los Angeles Times today printed what it describes as "the terms of the settlement" between Hart and his wife.

These include his establishing a trust fund of $400,000, of which she has control while, in addition, he is to pay her $1,200 a month, presumably indefinitely, and set up a trust fund of $100,000 for the child.

WIFE KEEPS BABY.

It is stated Hart agreed his wife was to have the "whole care, control and custody of the baby."

"They may take him from me, but they can't say he's not mine," said Hart after seeing the child.

Friends who saw the first meeting of Hart and his heir say the two at once became the best of friends. Before leaving, Mrs. Hart requested her husband to write in her baby book the names of the infant's progenitors, so Bill inscribed the various grandfathers on the book and the meeting was over.

"Say," Hart exclaimed after leaving, "that isn't a baby, that's a man. I'll tell you on the square, he is that long." (Here Bill extended his arms full length).

"He looks like me, too. He's got my head and just my eyes. He's got his mother's nose. When he gets big he is going to be a long, tall chap like , too. He's mine through and through."

Tears came to Bill's steel gray eyes and his fists clenched as a queer little crooked smile played over his lips.

Major-General Clarence R. Edwards is to be given a reception by "his boys" when he retires on December 1. The reception will be held in the T.D.
